Cartoonists to convene in Carmel

CARTOONISTS from Carmel and throughout Northern California will congregate Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 13 and 14, for the annual Carmel Cartoon Festival, which this year honors Hank Ketcham of Pebble Beach, creator of Dennis the Menace — one of the longest-running and best-loved cartoon strips (above), first published in 1951. The event was organized by Carmel cartoonist Glenn Bernhardt, who was assisted by Gus Arriola, Eldon Dedini, Al Parker, Tom Nix, Alex Anderson, Fred Toole, and Dorris Quinn. The cartoonists will have their annual dinner Saturday at La Playa Hotel. (Cartoon drawing courtesy of Hank Ketcham.)

Hatton Canyon options still open

By MICHAEL GARDNER

CONSTRUCTION of the Hatton Canyon Freeway is not a foregone conclusion, although design studies are underway, an environmental impact review progresses and the California Transportation Commission already has set aside funding for the project in fiscal year 1987-88.

That was the somewhat surprising announcement made Oct. 2 by Ken Jones, CalTrans engineer who is in charge of the design of the proposed freeway.

In a meeting of the Hatton Canyon Freeway Advisory Committee at the Monterey County Courthouse in Monterey, Jones said that when the environmental studies are completed and adopted sometime in 1986 then "we'll decide if we're going to do this (the freeway) or if we're going to do that (widen existing highway)."

Jones elaborated on his brief statement during a telephone conversation with the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook Oct. 4.

Jones explained that CalTrans has to develop along with the environmental review a "project report" that will include the department recommendation on whether to proceed with the Hatton Canyon Freeway.

The final recommendation will be developed through analysis by CalTrans officials in the traffic, environment and engineering departments, Jones added.

District Director Jesus Garcia is charged with signing the final report from the CalTrans regional office in San Luis Obispo. The project report and environmental study will then be presented to the California Transportation Commission for a decision sometime in mid-1986, Jones said.

"They have to approve or disapprove."

'They have to approve or disapprove. They could say to heck with your recommendation or they could say we have decided not to do anything. That's not likely, but it's a possibility.'

They could say to heck with your recommendation or they could say we have decided not to do anything," he said. "That's not likely,

but it's a possibility."

Jones himself is a firm supporter of the freeway, which would be constructed through 2.7 miles of the Hatton Canyon east of Highway 1 between Carpenter Street and Rio Road.

"To be truthful, if we're going to solve the traffic problem, there is no other reasonable alternative," he said.

There will be "plenty of time" for supporters and opponents of the freeway to present their cases during the environmental review and transportation commission hearings in 1986, Jones said.

JONES ALSO expounded a couple of key issues that surround the Hatton Canyon Freeway proposal and which were

Brunn deserves credit

Dear Editor:

Readers of your letters page may be interested to learn that Rod Holmgren's diatribe (Oct. 4) criticizing Howard Brunn's role in the campaign to halt supertankers in Monterey Bay woefully distorts the facts. Many of us within the environmentalist community who were involved in the fight to save the bay have observed Holmgren's egotistical war for credit with quiet embarrassment over the years. However, since Holmgren has publicly accused Brunn of "rewriting" history we would like to set the record straight. It is a remarkable story of our community's commitment, involvement and leadership, and it has a happy ending.

The FOG Foundation leadership learned of the PG&E plan to build a supertanker port at Moss Landing through an article which appeared in the Pacific Grove press in July 1979. Written by Captain Charles Domac, it reported that the fight to stop PG&E had been lost — the last round in a long battle — when the Coastal Commission approved the project.

FOG contacted Captain Domac immediately for a full briefing. We learned that Domac felt he had been denied adequate time to present his expert testimony before the commissioners. Furthermore, he convinced us that had the facts been available the permit would have never been granted. He reported that the public hearings and, in particular, the last fatal hearing before the commissioners, had been dominated by Rod Holmgren in the name of the Sierra Club. We tried to contact Holmgren without success. He had left for an extended trip to Europe following the loss of this "last round."

FOG went to work, obtaining records of the proceedings and interviewing as many participants of the matter as we could reach in order to make our own analysis of the situation. We would not accept the fact that this was a "lost cause." It was too important and the future of Monterey Bay depended on its citizens making one last stand. Following countless hours of review, FOG determined that a new effort should be mounted to include a broad community campaign to inform the citizenry and seek new solutions.

We made a simple telephone call to the office of the Army Corps of Engineers in San Francisco. We learned that one small permit was still required before PG&E could begin construction of the new supertanker port. Elated, we boldly put "our toe in the door" and persuaded the Army Corps of Engineers to postpone what they advised us was a rubber-stamp approval (following Coastal Commission approval) until their representatives met with our newly-formed coalition. Miraculously, they agreed to give us one month.

We met with every leading expert from the former coalition and without exception these good people, though disheartened and exhausted, encouraged FOG and volunteered to join in a bold new front. The FOG Task Force to Save Monterey Bay was created. We knew that we needed smart political guidance — we were up against a complex bureaucracy at a state and federal level.

We turned to Howard Brunn, then serving on the Carmel City Council. His leadership marked a genuine turning point in the campaign. Brunn guided the campaign to networks of other committed individuals and organizations and by the end of that summer the new coalition was on purpose and well on its way to finding new solutions.

It was the beginning of the most ambitious grass-roots community effort in memory, and certainly among the most important issues to face residents of the Monterey Bay region. Our campaign had many facets but at the heart of the matter were our political strategies. The earlier coalition had provided sound primary facts, our expanded group amassed additional evidence and the plan called for creating a political climate to ensure that the facts be put on record.

When Holmgren returned from Europe, I spoke with him in the early fall and invited his participation in the FOG Task Force. He refused and in fact he actually discouraged my attempt to brief him on the vigorous new campaign already well underway.

As the grass-roots campaign expanded, our volunteers obtained more than 16,000 signatures from residents, visitors and even school children as far away as the Midwest. The late Dr. Betty Davis, following one of our innumerable conferences midway through the campaign, remarked to me that for the first time since the defeat before the Coastal Commission she felt renewed hope. Dr. Davis, though too ill to travel with our delegation during those last conferences with Colonel Adsit in San Francisco, continued to contribute evidence for our meetings.

One cannot sum up the amount of dedication that nearly a year of volunteer work on a cause of this nature requires, certainly not in the space allotted here. Yet this writer remembers clearly the sacrifices made during the supertanker campaign. Our leadership, including Brunn, traveled to Sacramento, San Francisco and Los Angeles lobbying and testifying and persistently pursuing a solution. We dared to fight to the finish and we won.

Everyone who signed our petitions can and should claim credit for saving Monterey Bay. It was a total community victory. And the fact remains that a handful of leaders led the charge. Howard Brunn has every authority in his assertion that he was instrumental in saving Monterey Bay. Through his careful, quiet and systematic strategizing, he along with countless other hard workers, did indeed keep the supertankers at bay, from our Monterey Bay.

Voting for Karin

Dear Editor:

I have the unusual vantage point of extensive personal experience with both candidates for Fifth District supervisor. Howard Brunn and I served together on the Carmel City Council for four years. I have also worked with and observed Karin Strasser Kauffman on many occasions.

Both candidates have served our community well. Based on my personal experience, however, the choice is clear. Karin Strasser Kauffman will be a truly outstanding supervisor.

When I think of Karin, the words that rush to mind are intelligence, fairness, integrity, and hard work. Karin has an invaluable talent for moving people of diverse views to work together toward a common goal.

As supervisor, she will be a unifying force, not a divisive influence. We need that. And we need Karin Strasser Kauffman's county experience and other skills to guide our precious area into the future. I will vote for Karin on Nov. 6.

'You cast rocks'

An open letter to

Robert Fenton
President, Board of Trustees
Carmel Unified School District

The young learn in many ways. Their parents teach them. They learn in schools. They also learn by observing the leaders in public life.

Mr. Fenton, when you sit as president of the board of trustees you are teaching. You teach our children your regard for morality and ethics in a public trust. You teach our children the way you choose to follow rules and regulations. You teach our children how you respect their parents, their teachers, and the administrators of their schools.

What am I to teach? Am I to continue trying to teach my students to be polite and to respect their parents, their teachers and the administrators of their schools? Am I to continue trying to teach my students to respect and follow the spirit as well as the letter of rules and regulations?

Am I to continue trying to teach my students to be honest; that they should accept — not deny — responsibility for their own actions? I want to continue trying to teach these things which I like to believe are part of the fiber of our culture.

But, Mr. Fenton, you cast such rocks along my path.

Protect Cachagua Valley

Dear Editor:

I agree with Emil Pozzi's letter re: "COMSAT as Good Neighbors." I've had direct relations with COMSAT since their inception some 17 years ago and have always had fine people to deal with. So it's particularly hard to be on opposite sides of the fence regarding COMSAT's desire to expand its facility.

However, when RCA wanted to do the same thing a couple of years ago, I had to go against another neighbor which was equally as hard. Our neighbors at COMSAT are not the people we are dealing with, however. We are at odds with a giant corporation in Washington, D.C., which cares not about our beautiful valley nor the people who live in it.

I, for one, do not want two more giant antennae leaning directly over my house. Aside from destroying the beauty of this last area of the ranching country of Carmel Valley, there is no one who can tell me with a straight face that microwaves are good for you. Latest experiments of long-time exposure to low-intensity microwaves are now being proven (contrary to the EIR report) to have damaging effects that were not known a short while ago.

I was here during the original construction of COMSAT. The huge cement trucks and semis that were constantly on our narrow county road went at dangerous speeds and ran many people off the road, plus the school bus twice. The present manager of COMSAT belittles this as an exaggeration. He was not here so how can he say anything!

These antennae are as a massive billboard blighting our beautiful country which would never be permitted in any rural area, and particularly Carmel Valley.

Our 'Pink Palace'

Dear Editor:

My compliments. Since I vote in our unique town I feel privileged to write this note to you.

After reading the Pine Cone for several weeks now, one thing still hangs loosely in my mind: Why all the hubbaloos about the pink exterior of the La Playa, when one of the world's most renowned hotels is painted brilliant pink?

I am thinking of the distant horizons and countless numbers of seamen who criss-cross over the face of the Pacific. Fondly I remember rising up over the horizon out of the Far East and hearing the lookouts cry: "Land off the port bow."

In due time a landmark of pink took shape in the long glass, giving rise to all sorts of expectations. An hour later the Pink Palace-like shape of the Royal Hawaiian revealed its stately contours in silent statement: "This is it. Aloha, you have arrived." Its subtle contrast against the background of lush green hills beyond, by color alone created a striking sight amidst an otherwise drab neighborhood environment.

With raised eyebrow one might wonder about the thought behind the opposition to the color pink when pink is a color so predominant in our culture and so widely used in human relations.

My compliments go to the city council for its well-thought-out compromise. I, for one, am pleased to think that here in the front garden of the state of California, we also have our own Pink Palace.

Overhaul Youth Center

Dear Editor:

It is a sad state that the Carmel community has a Youth Center which could be serving the community in so many ways, but which is paralyzed and stigmatized by political turmoil, and that the center has a highly committed and dedicated director whose efforts to build use and community involvement are so mired by that same turmoil.

We have a center which can serve us all. We have a director who wants to serve us all. Why must an embattled old-guard/new-guard board be permitted to waste these precious community resources because of battles of will which have nothing to do with the purposes of the center?

Let's clear the decks and reassert a full sense of community purpose by re-installing a board which is dedicated to the people whose mandate is given by today's parents and today's Carmel residents, as defined today. I would suggest that too much time would be lost in waiting for the present board to resolve its own differences. Has it now surrendered that prerogative by failing to do so for nearly six months? (And by doing such a sloppy job of installing the present director!)

A new board must be constituted of individuals whose credentials are their specific interest in the youth of Carmel rather than to another service organization with narrowly defined aims. Might this type of board then serve the center and the city of Carmel based on their commitment and vested interest (as parents, not as individuals or organizational drum-beaters!) in a successful facility?

I am one of many parents in this town who have a viable program to propose. Mine would be a dance-exercise class that would involve people of all ages throughout the community. I would appreciate having a board consider additional activities such as mine, instead of only its own internal combustion which benefits no one.

Protect Hatton Canyon

Dear Editor:

The Hatton Canyon should be protected as a residential park and this pristine open space is necessary for the wildlife. The deer and butterflies, even the birds, depend on Hatton Canyon for a refuge from roads and dangerously speeding cars.

The only way to stop the politicians from destroying Hatton Canyon is to pressure them into seeking an alternative. The Monterey County politicians must respond to public pressure to save Hatton Canyon. Please write to the County Board of Supervisors to protest the Hatton Canyon highway development.

This brass bed could last longer than you.

Or your children. Perhaps even your grandchildren. What makes it heirloom quality? For one thing, every Scandia Down brass bed is made with the heaviest pure brass castings manufactured in the U.S. today. Whereas most "brass beds" are made with brass plating or thin brass tubing.

Here's something else. Our beds are faithful reproductions of the strikingly beautiful and highly functional designs of prized European originals. The castings, for example, are etched and polished by hand to achieve their intricate detailing and deep lustre. And the brass parts are connected by threaded steel rods for maximum strength and stability.

Hopeful signs appear on the freeway front

WE CAN ALL be grateful that the Hatton Canyon Freeway Advisory Committee decided to give public notice of its meeting last week. A couple of dozen citizens decided to show up, to ask questions, and to offer opinions about the proposed freeway as a result.

Previous meetings of the committee had not been publicly announced, but last week's session proved very revealing, as reported elsewhere in this week's Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook.

Perhaps the most interesting bit of information to come out of the meeting was word from CalTrans officials that the long-controversial Hatton Canyon Freeway is not etched in bureaucratic granite. Even though the state transportation commission has budgeted funds for its construction and ordered environmental studies, a staff report must be prepared which recommends whether to proceed, according to Ken Jones, regional CalTrans engineer.

Then the California Transportation Commission must vote in mid-1986 whether to go ahead with the freeway, to abandon it, or to approve some type of widening of Highway 1 as an alternative, Jones said. Although the advisory committee was scheduled only to discuss freeway design, subsequent discussion of highway widening alternatives indicated the freeway is no fait accompli.

Some of the widening alternatives to construction of the freeway — as outlined by Jones — may look good to environmentalists and those who are against the freeway but concerned about the traffic bottleneck at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

The least expensive and least environmentally-damaging of these alternatives envisions the construction of two additional northbound lanes, one more southbound lane south of Ocean Avenue to Rio Road and the construction of a two-way left turn lane at a cost of about $900,000.

The most expensive and disruptive alternative would involve widening of Highway 1 to six lanes between Carpenter Street and Rio Road at an approximate cost of $6 million. The state already owns the required right-of-way.

Although Jones indicated the widening of Highway 1 probably would not relieve traffic congestion at the mouth of the Valley, he also admitted a personal bias strongly in favor of the freeway.

In order to obtain a clear picture of the feasibility of Highway 1 widening, some sort of objective traffic and engineering studies probably should be undertaken.

But citizens who have deep concerns about the advisability of the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway should be cheered by word that the project is not signed, sealed and almost delivered. And by the fact there will be plenty of time and opportunity for them to make their voices heard.

Once upon a time there were four million, three thousand, two hundred and one... Puggles, but now there are only a few bagfuls left, just like this one. Puggles lived in the dark forest, under the ground in tunnels. They came out of their holes at night to feed and all night long they would puggle-up every bite they could find. As daylight approached, it would 'dawn' on them that they must get back home.

Waiting for them at their front doors would be the local people. Of course, the Puggles had stuffed themselves so full that they couldn't get down their holes, making them easy prey for the people who just loved Puggle pie.

So that is why last thing at night, you must tuck your Puggle into this bag, tie it up tightly and don't let it out until the morning. This way, the Puggles will not become extinct and maybe one day there will be as many Puggles as before...

Now wouldn't that be an eye-pugging sight!

not animosity or bitterness, but my support," he said.

His monologue was followed by another lengthy standing ovation by the audience. The male administrators clasped hands with him. Carmel High School Principal Marsha Kading-Kelly and middle school Vice Principal Dee Dresser wept.

After the session, Mrs. Kading Kelly talked to the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook about Rand.

"There are two levels in my relationship with Bill Rand. Personally he has been wonderful and supportive and a good friend.

"Professionally of the six superintendents I've worked with in my years in education, he is the most astute and progressive instructional leader I have known," she said.

"It's a definite loss for Carmel. But the positive patterns and procedures he has introduced here will last for a long time. He leaves a legacy of openness and support," she said.

Carmel planners to view scheme for city hall remodel, expansion

PLANS FOR a remodeled and expanded city hall are to be presented to the Carmel Planning Commission Oct. 17.

Commissioners will meet at 4 p.m. at city hall. The meeting is open to the public.

Architect George Keeble of Monterey will present his plans for city hall remodeling, which will cost an estimated $350,000.

The plans include expansion of City Administrator Doug Schmitz' office to make room for an office for the mayor and more secretarial space.

The planning department also will be expanded because of lack of space. Downstairs there will be a meeting room and computer center.

Work on the project is expected to begin this December. Some city hall operations probably will temporarily relocate to Sunset Center while the job is underway.

In other action, the planning commission is to:

- Review a request to paint and add a chimney to Katy's Cottage, formerly Judy's Pantry, west side of Lincoln Street between Seventh and Eighth avenues.

- Consider an application from La Playa Hotel for a greenhouse on the hotel property, southwest corner of Eighth Avenue and El Camino Real.

- Act on an application by the Butcher Shop to remodel the front of the restaurant, north side of Ocean Avenue between Lincoln and Dolores streets.

- Review a request from the Bayou Cafe for an awning. The commission already has rejected an awning once for the restaurant, northwest corner of Mission Street and Sixth Avenue. The owners want the request denied again so that they can appeal the rejection to the city council.

CV phones repaired

A brief lapse in telephone service to Carmel Valley Oct. 5 was due to an accident during routine maintenance, according to Pacific Bell.

All incoming and outgoing calls in the 659 prefix were blocked for approximately 20 minutes Friday morning, when the main power supply to the Carmel Valley switching office was disconnected.

The outage occurred at 10:59 a.m., and almost all service was restored at 11:20 a.m. The balance of service was returned by 3 p.m. to all 3,100 telephone customers in Carmel Valley.

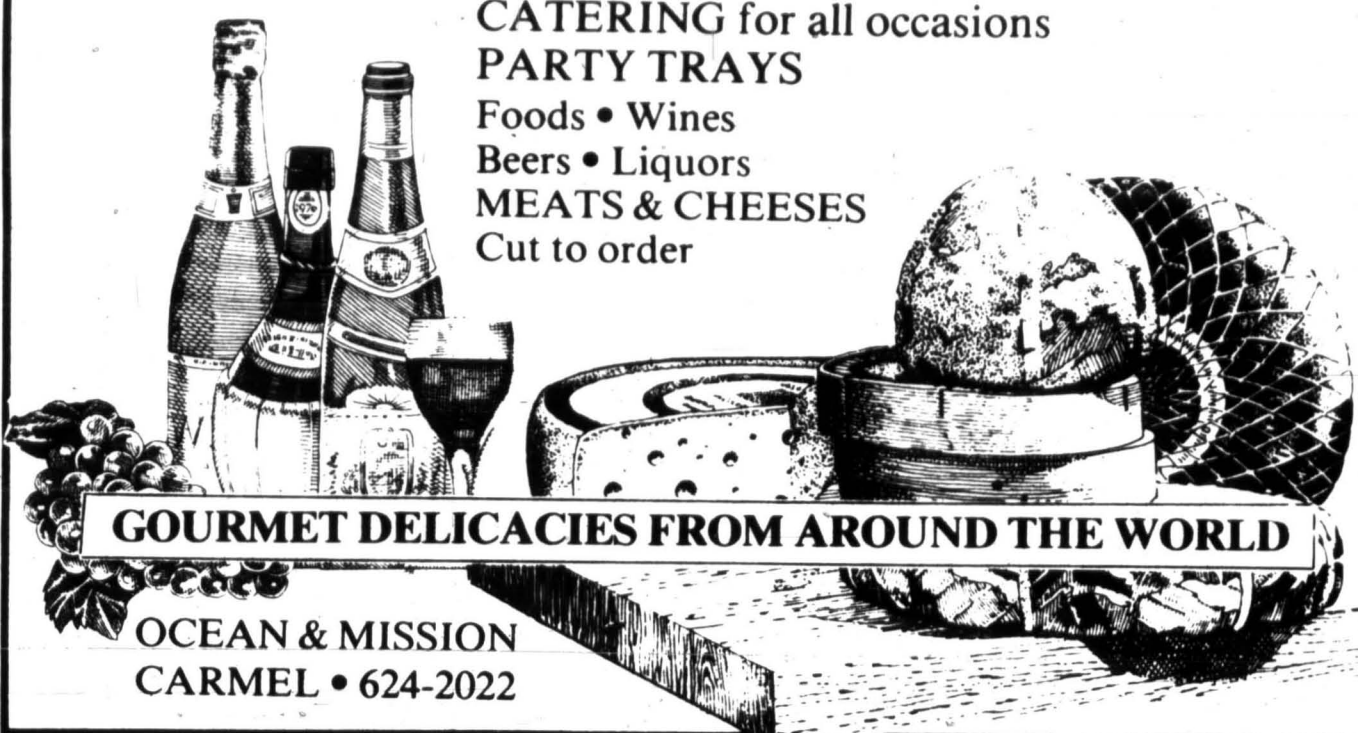

Cheerleaders go for it

THE CARMEL High School cheerleaders have launched a series of fund raising activities to help them go to the 1984 NCA High School National Championship in Dallas, Tex. this December. The cheerleaders, who have received the National Cheerleaders Association "Award of Excellence," need $8,000 to pay the costs to attend the competition. So far pledges have totaled $2,000. There will be a $3 donation car wash from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 13 at Carmel High School. You could also "adopt" a cheerleader for $100, receive a certificate of adoption and a picture. Merchants may also help by donating merchandise for drawings at football games. Businesses may also want to have a "Dallas Day" where a percentage of the sales goes to the cheerleaders. Private donations can be made by writing the "Dallas Fund" in care of the cheerleaders at Carmel High School, PO Box 222780, Carmel, Calif. 93922. All donations are tax-deductible. CalTrans official says freeway plans flexible briefly addressed during the Oct. 2 advisory committee meeting.

The project report and environmental study will address the possibility of CalTrans widening Highway 1 in conjunction with the construction of Hatton Canyon Freeway, he said. The state agency already owns the necessary right-of-way required to widen Highway 1.

And Jones plans to push for that proposal. "My philosophy is if we're going to make an ideal traffic situation we could justify widening it (Highway 1) to four lanes and build the Hatton Canyon Freeway," he said. "It's being considered," he added.

Jones said the traffic department "is not convinced" that a signal light at the intersection of Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road would ease the traffic problem until the freeway is constructed or the highway widened.

But the traffic department will count the cars and include that in the overall report, he indicated.

A light at that intersection would cost about $100,000, Jones estimated.

Jones' comments were an explanation of some of his statements at a testy Oct. 2 meeting of the Hatton Canyon Freeway Advisory Committee.

Jones fielded tough and critical questions Oct. 2 from an audience ready to do battle once again over the controversial project that has been debated since Jones joined CalTrans about three decades ago.

The audience posed a series of often-asked questions about the need for a freeway and renewed demands that some improvements should be made immediately to relieve traffic congestion.

Jones' straightforward, informal chat produced some amusing and rather surprising information — in addition to the announcement that the freeway is not a foregone conclusion.

This included word that:
• The Carmel River bridge could collapse if a an earthquake of any real magnitude strikes the Carmel area.

"If we had a good shocker, that bridge may go down," Jones said. "It's borderline that it may need to be replaced."

• The cost of an interchange at Carmel Valley Road that may be built if Highway 1 is widened would be approximately $9.4 million. "It's going to cost bucks, and I mean big bucks," Jones said.

• If the route design and environmental reports are accepted as scheduled, the Hatton Canyon Freeway still would not be finished until 1990.

• The Hatton Canyon Freeway is necessary only because of the growth in Carmel Valley, Jones said.

'LET'S BE frank. The main reason we're having to build this is because of Carmel Valley,' Jones said.

A lot of preliminary work on the freeway design is to slow down because some of the CalTrans information on the canyon is outdated and a study needs to be completed on its terrain and other characteristics, Jones revealed.

Although the advisory committee was to discuss its opinions on widening alternatives, the Oct. 2 session immediately turned into an afternoon of citizen participation with the committee barely having a chance to get a word in edgewise.

It was the first time the date and time of the committee meeting had been publicized in advance.

And the committee soon learned that the Carmel community's interest in the freeway is enough to draw two dozen concerned citizens.

Jones, who leads the meetings, decided to take the opportunity to give citizens a chance to speak. The session soon developed into a dialogue between Jones and the citizens, as the committee sat and listened.

Committee member Ernest Easterbrook twice stood and attempted to get the meeting

'My philosophy is if we're going to make an ideal traffic situation we could justify widening it (Highway 1) to four lanes and build the Hatton Canyon Freeway.'

back to its original intent of discussing the design concepts for the freeway.

Easterbrook explained that the meeting is not "a forum to fight" the freeway, "otherwise we'll be here all day."

Easterbrook said he was willing to listen to "constructive" comments, but "we're not here to harangue" anything.

Committee member John Gates twice spoke about the need to stick to discussion of the freeway design.

He said if there is just going to be a debate over the merits of Hatton Canyon Freeway then "why take our time?"

Committee member Rockwell Hereford, at another point in the session, agreed: "It (the audience discussion) has taken a lot of our time....Have you heard any of us given any advice today?"

To which Gates added: "Let's go home." But he stayed as the meeting progressed.

Jones admitted that he was stuck in the middle between trying to respond to the public concerns and getting the committee advice on the design.

"I'm sort of between a rock and a hard place. Let's not blame anybody. Let's calm down," Jones said.

Jones argued that it might be a good idea to address the concerns of the public since detailed work must be slowed while CalTrans does more specific surveys in the canyon.

Citizens turn out to question freeway committee

'IF THEY want to take a peek, let them take a peek, because I think we're doing a darned good job," Jones said.

Mary Ann Matthews of Carmel Valley chimed in that she would "deplore" any attempt by Jones or the committee to restrict public discussion and questions at a public meeting.

Jones also pointed out that the alternative of widening Highway 1 must be addressed as part of the environmental studies for the project, so the committee should not solely focus on the design of Hatton Canyon Freeway.

"It is one of the alternatives we have to look at," he told the committee.

But Jones reminded those present that "my job is to get the best freeway design I can. That's my meat."

The committee and audience were presented with three different widening proposals.

The first would widen Highway 1 south of Ocean Avenue to Rio Road to include two lanes going north, one southbound lane and a two-way left turn lane in the center. That plan would cost about $900,000.

Another choice would be to make Highway 1 four lanes south of Ocean Avenue and include a two-way left turn lane. That proposal would cost about $1.5 million.

The third choice is to widen the existing highway to six lanes from Carpenter Street to Rio Road at a cost of about $6 million.

The first proposal would be the "least" environmentally damaging, while the six-lane idea would require more money and use the entire state-owned right-of-way "right up to their (homeowners') front yards," said Mike Mortenson, assistant transportation engineer.

Mortenson stressed the need for separate two-way left turn lanes. "Those people trying to turn now are sitting ducks out there," he said.

Cost of the Hatton Canyon Freeway between Carpenter Street and Rio Road is $17.8 million in 1984 dollars and about $27 million in 1990 dollars.

However, the widening of Highway 1 would not alleviate the traffic problem,

ALTHOUGH CREWS from CalTrans have been clearing brush for survey work in Hatton Canyon, engineer Ken Jones says that a because existing "impediments" would slow cars, according to Jones. These include driveways, the traffic lights, left turns and the Carmel Valley Road intersection.

And any interchange at Carmel Valley Road will cost "big bucks," Jones said. He listed the cost at about $9.4 million.

MRS. MATTHEWS, a member of the two now-defunct Carmel Valley Master Plan final decision on the freeway project will not be made until after the environmental review advisory committees, told the group that "we need to relieve congestion now. The very minimum we need is a climbing lane (northbound to Ocean Avenue.)"

Mrs. Matthews added that "some people" believe the state is "deliberately" not doing anything about the traffic while the freeway is under study "to push us into an all-or-nothing situation."

Audience member Mel Kline also said: "I think we need some relief from that traffic now — not in 1990."

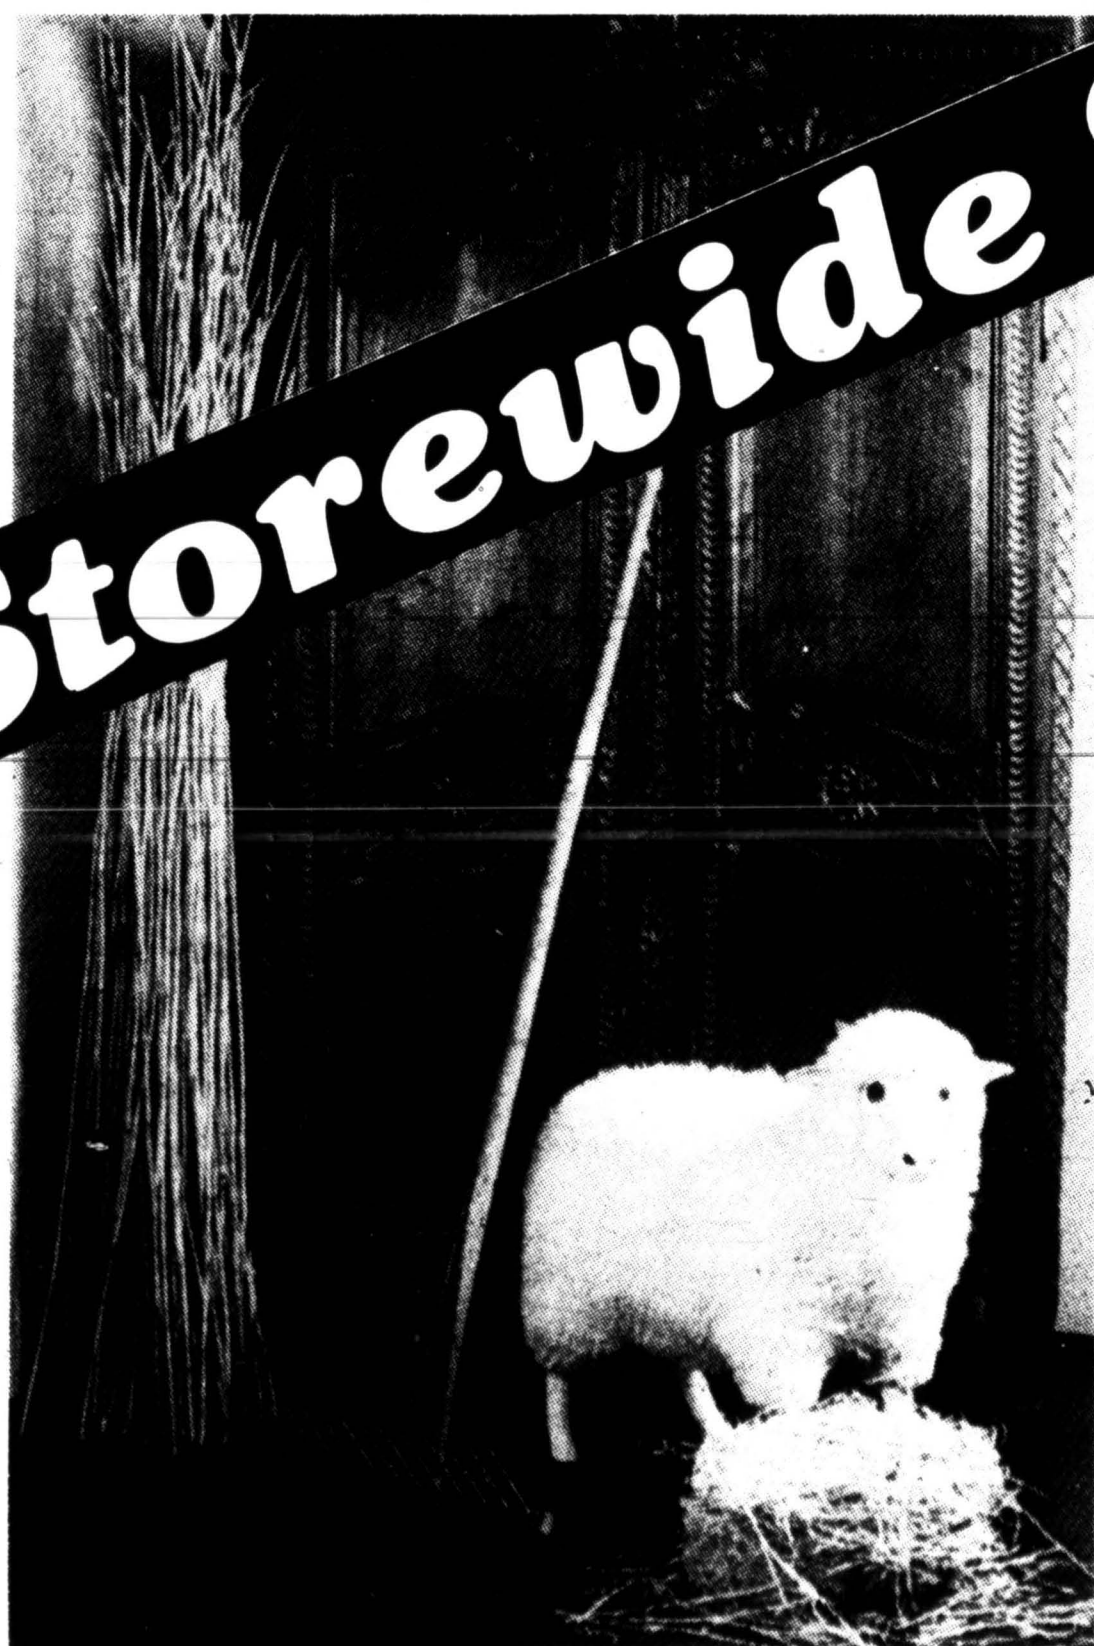

process is completed in mid-1986. (Michael Gardner photo.)

The schedule for completion of the freeway indicates adoption of the environmental impact studies by 1986, award of the contract in 1988 and completion in 1990, Jones said.

The California Transportation Commission has set aside in its budget schedules funds for the freeway in fiscal year 1987-88.

However, a final decision is not to be made until after the environmental review process, Jones explained.

Pebble Beach residents to protest Spanish Bay

By MICHAEL GARDNER

UNHAPPY CONGRESS Road residents plan to converge on the Monterey County Board of Supervisors Oct. 16 to protest use of their road as a construction truck route for the proposed Spanish Bay resort complex in Pebble Beach.

The Monterey County Planning Commission recommended on Sept. 26 that the board of supervisors approve the $125-million hotel, golf course and condominium complex in the area known as Spanish Bay at the northwestern tip of Pebble Beach near Pacific Grove.

In other action during the marathon 14-hour session, planners approved a rezoning for Mission Ranch resort and also recommended that supervisors adopt the Greater Monterey Peninsula Area Plan.

Congress Road residents weathered the lengthy agenda, but then as midnight approached they were told they would not be allowed to speak.

Commissioners had closed the public hearing on Spanish Bay at the Sept. 12 session, although the Sept. 26 agenda advertised the item as a "continued public hearing."

Congress Road residents did protest the truck hauling at that Sept. 12 meeting and about a dozen were on hand two weeks later to reiterate their views.

The residents are particularly concerned about the danger the trucks pose to children. And they say the trucks will create more noise, traffic and pollution problems in the area.

Sand-filled trucks are expected to travel on Congress Road at the rate of one every 90 seconds for five months.

Tons of sand are needed to replenish the Spanish Bay area, which is a mined-out sand plant area.

Commissioners did order some mitigation steps to be taken by Pebble Beach Co. The firm is to bypass about 10 homes and also divert 1,400 feet of Congress road by using a small nearby dirt road.

A temporary mile-long fence on the Pacific Grove side of Congress Road also is to be constructed. The fence idea is to discourage children from wandering into traffic.

The fence is expected to be removed after the sand is replenished.

Pebble Beach Co. officials envision a 270-unit hotel on the site. There also will be a championship golf course and an 80-unit condominium complex.

The Spanish Bay issue was one of several Carmel-area items addressed by planners Sept. 26.

penheimer Family wants to build on the 20,000-acre property in the hills south of Carmel Valley Road.

The area plan still must be adopted by supervisors before its policies go into effect.

In addition, commissioners recommended language in the plan that would not allow development of Rancho San Carlos to begin until after construction on the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway is underway.

Planners deleted a suggestion by Commissioner Gary Varga that would have delayed the Rancho San Carlos project until after work begins on the proposed Canada de la Segunda road to connect Highway 68 and Carmel Valley Road.

Canada de la Segunda, however, is recommended in the proposed area plan.

And planners recommended the plan include zoning for a 200- to 400-unit hotel on the Rancho San Carlos property.

Supervisory candidate Karin Strasser Kauffman protested the plan to allow 2,000 units at Rancho San Carlos. The 2,000 units were recommended by a committee of the commission.

Mrs. Strasser Kauffman called the higher density "a step backward." She believes 500 units still would allow for a "viable" project.

"In contrast, the proposed subcommittee recommendation of 2,000 units should be considered unacceptable," she wrote in a statement provided to the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook.

"Such density is unacceptable to local residents not only due to severe resource constraints (traffic, access, potential air pollution, and impounding of water runoff to the Carmel River aquifer) but even more because it points out the heart of land use planning: consideration of the type of growth we desire and permit (and) the type of community we anticipate."

Mrs. Strasser Kauffman argues that Rancho San Carlos will just provide more expensive housing when the community really needs low- and moderate-cost housing.

"If we do permit projects which cater to an 'outsiders' housing market' let us at least limit the scale," she added.

THROUGH THEIR recommendation that the draft Greater Monterey Peninsula Area Plan be approved, planners endorsed zoning for a 2,000-unit residential development at Ranch San Carlos.

The action is a compromise between the 500 units urged by the Citizens Advisory Committee and the 3,800 homes the Op-

RANCHO SAN Carlos Attorney Brian Finegan admitted that the homes would be "damned expensive" if the county allows only 500 units.

Finegan argued that a 3,800-unit development would give the developers an opportunity to provide some low-cost housing.

Why I'm supporting Karas for supervisor

ON ELECTION day, the people who live in the Carmel/Carmel Valley/-Pebble Beach areas can be a major factor in an election that will have far-reaching effects on the future of the area, even though we cannot vote in that election.

Let me explain.

While Howard Brunn and Karin Strasser Kauffman slug it out here in the race to represent the people of the Fifth Supervisorial District, underdog Sam Karas opposes Charles Benson in the election for supervisor of the neighboring Fourth District (which includes much of Pacific Grove, Monterey, Seaside and Del Rey Oaks).

The Karas-Benson race is potentially much more important to the people who live on this side of the hill, however.

Two of the five members of the board of supervisors are not running for re-election — Bill Peters of the Fifth District and Michal Moore of the Fourth District. Both have been quixotic and disappointing to conservationists. Both frequently yielded to the desires of special interests.

The remaining three supervisors are Barbara Shipnuck, Marc Del Piero and Dusan Petrovic. Mrs. Shipnuck has rubber-stamped almost every development proposal that has come before the board. Del Piero is a fine young man, but his vote can not be counted on.

Only Dusan Petrovic, the feisty supervisor from King City has voted time after time to slow down development on the Monterey Peninsula. Only he insisted on taking a hard look at proposals for development to see if anyone else but the developers would benefit. Often he was on the wrong end of 4-1 votes.

If conservationists can elect two candidates who are sympathetic to their views in the Fourth and Fifth districts, it would represent a majority on the board for the first time in many, many years.

Karin Strasser Kauffman is clearly the front runner in the Fifth District race. Brunn has waffled on the issues, and appears to be shifting his positions to try to attract some of the people who voted for losing candidates in the June primary. It appears that Strasser Kauffman will be the winner.

If that scenario unfolds, the winner of the Karas-Benson race would hold the swing vote on the board of supervisors. And, as everyone is keenly aware, actions of the board of supervisors can have a profound effect on the quality of life for the people who live on the Monterey Peninsula.

Sam Karas has a proven record as a fighter against large-scale development. Charles Benson is a "good old boy" who has accepted campaign contributions from big landowners and developers and their agents. There is little doubt that he would vote for most of the developments that come before the supervisors for approval.

It is important to the future of the Carmel/Carmel Valley/Pebble Beach area, therefore, that Sam Karas be elected, and not Charles Benson.

I'LL EXPLAIN later how you can help, but first, let's have a look at the candidates and the organizations and people who support them.

Benson has accepted large campaign contributions from Pebble Beach Co., Rancho San Carlos and Los Palmas Ranch. All three are large landowners or developers who have large-scale plans for development in the county.

Pebble Beach Co. is nursing its application for hotel, golf course and residential development at Spanish Bay. Virtually all of Pebble Beach lies within unincorporated county land governed by the board of supervisors.

The Oppenheimer family wishes to build some 3,800 units at Rancho San Carlos in Carmel Valley. Los Palmas Ranch Corp. desires to build 1,100 units in the River Road area of Salinas.

In addition, Benson has accepted contributions from Building and Construction Trades PAC; State Assn. of General Contractors PAC; and is supported by the Monterey Peninsula Board of Realtors and by many individuals who favor growth for the sake of growth.

Outgoing Supervisor Michal Moore has publicly endorsed Benson as "his" candidate. Supporters who attended the opening of Benson campaign headquarters in July included Burke Pease, executive director of the Monterey Chamber of Commerce; former Monterey Mayor Gerald Fry (who was defeated in his re-election bid by the voters who were alarmed by headlong hotel development); former Fifth District Supervisor Willard Branson, who fought with his own constituents in the early 70s because he was in favor of development; and Pacific Grove Councilmen Robert Quinn, Florus Williams and Jim Hughes, who have been overruled by the voters of Pacific Grove several times because they rubber-stamped many unpopular development proposals.

Where does Benson stand on the issues? He's not saying. Because of his long-time tenure as a member of several regional boards, he claims to have the experience and the know-how for the job. Those who have watched him, however, note that he has a rather undistinguished record on these boards.

SAM KARAS led the fight that culminated in a successful initiative to stop massive commercial development at Tarpey Flats adjacent to Monterey. In a just-published position paper, he states that he opposes the development at Spanish Bay; finds the proposal for 3,800 units with hotel and golf course at Rancho San Carlos "unacceptable;" opposes offshore drilling; opposes limestone mining on Pico Blanco; opposes redwood timbering in the Big Sur area; and states flatly that "development should be curtailed until key arteries are widened or additional roads such as the Hatton Canyon Freeway are completed."

He has been endorsed by the 3,300-member Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club. Among his supporters in this area are many well-known conservationists including Rudd Crawford, Rod Holmgren, Dr. Arnold Manor, Janice O'Brien, Joyce Stevens, Judson Vandevere, Stanley and Darby Worth and many others.

Karas also has been endorsed by Monterey Mayor Clyde Roberson, Monterey Councilwoman Ruth Vreeland, and former Monterey Councilman Alvin Andrus. All three have fought to stem the tide of development in Monterey.

Karas says: "For many years we have allowed this area to be represented by supervisors who favored large developers and special interest groups who don't care what happens to the people who live here. They create problems with high density, traffic, sewage and water. They take their profit and leave the problems to us."

Those are the fighting words of the kind of person I would like to represent me and my views as a member of the Monterey County Board of Supervisors. If you agree, and would like to help, here are a couple of suggestions...

- Send money to Karas headquarters, P.O. Box 2764, Monterey, Calif. 93940. The well-financed Benson campaign is reportedly planning a television blitz before the election. As of this moment, there are no funds available for any TV advertising for Karas. Money is also needed for printing, postage, newspaper advertising and the other necessities of any election campaign.

- Volunteer your time to help with precinct work, telephone canvassing or leafleting.

- Plan a fund-raising party or event with your friends and neighbors. The money is sorely needed.

- Tell your friends in Pacific Grove, Monterey and Seaside to vote for Karas, and explain why it is important that he be elected. The phone number at Karas headquarters is 394-4040.

If this sounds like an unabashed endorsement of Sam Karas, well, maybe it is. But, friends, his election is vital for the protection of the quality of life and the incomparable beauty we enjoy and cherish on the Monterey Peninsula.

An article which appeared in the Oct. 4 edition of the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook gave erroneous information concerning location of parabolic antennas at the Communications Satellite Corp. Jamesburg Earth Station.

The station has a minimum location of 7.5 degrees above — not below — the horizon, according to manager A.J. Stotler.

Citizens voice concerns over microwave levels

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE ENVIRONMENTAL impact report on proposed expansion of the Jamesburg Earth Station has stimulated 45 pages of comment and criticism from local residents.

The Monterey County Planning Department tabulated the response to the draft EIR and forwarded the paperwork to Environmental Science Associates of Foster City — the consulting firm that prepared the document.

The final version of the EIR, which is to incorporate responses to questions raised during the public review period that closed Oct. 1, will then be returned to the county for public hearing, according to planning staffer Cathy Stein.

A public hearing on the EIR, which normally precedes certification, tentatively is scheduled for Oct. 31 before the Monterey County Planning Commission. Action on the use permit for the project may take place then, or be delayed, Ms. Stein said.

The potential health hazard posed by increased microwave radiation from additional antennas at the satellite earth station is a primary concern of many who responded to the EIR. COMSAT wants permission to add a 105-foot-high parabolic antenna to its existing 97-foot-high antenna, as well as four more "torus" antennas.

"The discussion of the wide discrepancy among notions on what are considered safe microwave exposure limits illustrate that not enough is really known about microwave radiation hazards for anyone to state definitely what level of exposure is safe and what is not," wrote Jerry Foote, president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association.

"Increasing the microwave exposure in and around the project site based on data that (are) not universally accepted could be putting the health of the residents of the Cachagua area at risk."

The CVPOA board of directors also pointed out in its letter to the county that "the existing earth station is already incompatible with adjacent land uses and any expansion will make it even more so," Ms. Foote wrote.

"The board feels that evaluation of this project at this time is premature. Since a great deal of local interest has been expressed, and since there is no identifiable basis for urgency associated with the project, we recommend that processing this project be addressed to the Monterey County Planning Department. The review period for the draft environmental impact report on the project closed Oct. 1 and a hearing tentatively is scheduled Oct. 31.

deferred until it can be considered as part of the Cachagua Area Plan.

"Consideration of the project at this time amounts to a de facto circumvention of the planning process."

Valley drumbeats throb

SO LITTLE from so much....Why are pumpkins so funny? Not to offend the growers of the bulbous caprice, but the sight of a pumpkin — most especially a field of them — evokes a laugh from most people who can tell you they're amused, but cannot explain why.

Perhaps it is the relative uselessness of the squash. Oh, I know about pumpkin seeds and pumpkin pies and puddings — and you probably have a few old recipes for them which, frankly, I hope you won't send me, as I only like pumpkins whole or as jack o'lanterns.

Just settle the item of high interest and tell me, please, why pumpkins make us laugh.

Whenever a newcomer arrives in Carmel Valley, the drumbeats throb even before one sees the size or shape of the body — or face. When that body and face belong to the newest local veterinarian on the equine scene, then Ronald Reagan's vocalizations at the United Nations cease to hold any interest for the collective Valley curiosity.

Karas barbecue

Sam Karas, candidate for Fourth District Monterey County Supervisor, and his wife Edie, will be guests of honor at a barbecue from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 28 at the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club, Carmel Valley.

Hosts for the event are Richard and Cathy Rosenthal and Stanley and Darby Worth.

The public is invited. A donation of $10 per adult is requested and children will be admitted free. Make reservations by sending a check made payable to "Karas for Supervisor" to Richard Rosenthal, P.O. Box 1021, Carmel Valley, Calif. 93924. For further information, call Darby Worth at 624-7694.

Jim Hay, DVM, has been part of the trio at the Large Animal Veterinary Corp. (aka Drs. Gary Deter and Kent Fowler) for more than three months. If the fact seems to make this old news, read on.

In his new assignment, Dr. Hay has driven 6,500 miles in 14 weeks and must fill his truck's gas tank daily with $35 of gas, so you can understand why this man usually is a little too busy to hang out for an interview.

However, the Sage ambushed him the other day and managed to convince him that he was newsworthy. He looked a little skeptical, but persuasion prevailed.

Jim Hay, 29, graduated from veterinary school at U.C.-Davis last spring and began his practice with Drs. Deter and Fowler immediately afterward. A position with that pair is considered "a plum" opportunity, and the opening in their practice was the only job he applied for.

That might sound a little risky for a new graduate, but Hay said it is natural for him to decide what he wants and then to go after it single-mindedly. Veterinary medicine was his career goal since kindergarten, recalled Hay, who began a long series of veterinary apprenticeships at the age of 15.

A California native, Dr. Hay received his BS from Cal Poly as well as an MS in reproductive physiology from the University of Nevada at U.C.-Davis.

Dr. Hay acknowledged that it is difficult at times to enter practice as "the new kid on the block" when most clients have a strong sense of loyalty to their present vet — in this case, his colleagues. Still, he said most people are willing to give him a try.

His easy affability and keen wit — and a not exactly unattractive face — will surely compensate for the newness dilemma.

Besides, he already has had a distinguished background in treating all types of animals, and cares deeply about his patients and their sometimes temporarily demented owners. My observation, not his.

In a discussion of what to do before one calls the vet, Dr. Hay suggested that the most important process is, when possible, to take a minute to sit back and think. He stressed that it is much more important for an animal owner to have a good sense of judgment than medical knowledge.

Are there any typical problems which Hay thinks the horse owner might be able to circumvent? Well, he feels "My horse has had this problem for three days, Doctor" is a reasonable statement at most hours of most days, but tends to test the stamina and patience of the practitioner when the message first comes at 11 p.m. on a Saturday night.

However, Dr. Hay emphasized that he much prefers to be notified about a problem and be able to make a judgment about the immediacy of the need for treatment. Just try to remember that our vets need their beauty sleep, too.

The Tularcitos fall carnival is to be staged from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 20, at the elementary school. Pumpkins — ah yes, pumpkins! — will be offered for sale at a "farmers' market," which will also sell cut flowers, fruits and vegetables.

California Traffic Safety Week is scheduled for Oct. 14-20, according to Officer David Peelo of the California Highway Patrol. CHP officers will speak before groups ranging from school children to business associations on the subject of auto safety, offering — among other things — statistics on seat-belt safety and drunk-driving accidents.

Officer Peelo gave the Sage some figures on Valley accidents, which numbered 12 in the month of August on Carmel Valley Road alone.

Accidents generally cluster at certain points at certain times of the year without any obvious reason, though Porter's curve and the intersection of Laureles Grade and CV Road are two of the more consistently hazardous areas, he said. As one might expect, speed and intoxication are the two major factors involved in most crashes.

Officer Garry Zimmer added that most Valley accidents involve people who live in the area, and cautioned people to look for "escape routes" as they drive in rush hour traffic.

For those who worry that they might become trapped in a car if they use seat belts, the CHP statistics indicate that less than 1 percent of the population involved in auto accidents is ever trapped by the safety belts, whereas the use of them will reduce deaths and injuries by 57 percent. So buckle up when you go out to laugh at the pumpkin patch, and wait till you get home to have a drink.

The response to a suggestion that it is high time we established a Carmel Valley historical society has been gratifying. To stimulate further interest and to express appreciation to those who have already contributed Valley lore, Judy Sulsona at the C.V. library and the Sage are coordinating a kick-off event at the library.

If you would like to be one of the featured speakers at this gathering of history buffs, please let us know. No definite date has yet been established, as we are waiting to see what time would be best for the legend traders.

the Monterey County Health Department, raised a number of questions pertaining to microwave radiation and how well the subject is covered in the draft EIR.

Because there is no safety standard for general public exposure to microwave radiation, it is difficult to assess potential health hazards from the proposed COMSAT expansion, Friedrich wrote in a memo to the planning department.

"The background report ... is very helpful in its presentation of current microwave readings and theoretical projections, but we do not believe that the draft EIR has related these projections to current research on the effects of microwaves," Friedrich commented.

"The draft EIR section on the 'Effects on Humans' does not adequately address the issue of low-level effects on human physiological systems. To our knowledge, the United States does not have suggested microwave radiation levels for the general public.

"In discussions with Dr. Lusignan (contributor of the portion of the EIR on microwave radiation), our office was told that the COMSAT microwave activity would have the same physiological effects as the radiation from a microwave oven. Even though the United States has a product performance standard ... for microwave oven safety, what are the long-term effects of low-level microwave radiation?" Friedrich asked in his letter.

Friedrich also pointed out that most safety standards for microwave radiation are expressed with time factors, but noted that the draft EIR states the U.S. standard has no exposure limit. "Our Occupational Texts lists an exposure time," Friedrich noted. "Why the discrepancy?"

"The main problem is due to the non-existence of a general public exposure standard in the United States. We believe that it is more relevant if research and documentation is presented on the levels needed to protect the general public over a 24-hour period.

"The basic question remains: is there any such evidence that can lead us to realistic 24-hour exposure rates?" Friedrich asked.

Gary Varga, a member of the Monterey County Planning Commission from Carmel Valley, questioned whether workers at the COMSAT station would be exposed to dangerous radiation levels.

"The draft EIR fails to indicate whether the earth station employees may be exposed to radiation levels exceeding those of the general public," Varga wrote.

VARGA SAID current scientific research indicates that humans who are electrically grounded — as are workers in many communications facilities — absorb radiation at higher-than-normal levels.

"Microwave radiation can raise human internal temperature, and studies in humans show sustained, repeated temperature increases of 1.5 degrees to 2 degrees centigrade can either kill or malform human fetuses," Varga wrote.

"In light of the preeminent concern that all public officials must have for public safety, it seems that such startling literature should be reviewed and responded to in the draft EIR."

Varga also questioned whether earthquake safety hazards at the earth station have been adequately studied.

A Cachagua couple who lives near the Jamesburg Earth Station expressed their concern for the welfare of their child, if exposed to continued microwave radiation.

"Our home is located within the area of the highest microwave readings," wrote Paul Ray Franks and Ileene Crane-Franks. "We have a three-month-old daughter whose health and safety we place above everything.

"We are dismayed to find there are only two sources on microwaves referenced — both of which are obscure and questionable. Most assertions made in this section are not referenced at all.

"The EIR clearly states research and information on long-term low-level exposure to microwaves is lacking, yet conclusions of 'appears to be safe' are made throughout this section," the couple wrote.

"Unsubstantiated assumptions are freely given, such as 'minor' changes in blood steroid levels. Steroids formulate part of the repairing and healing functions of the human body. What exactly is a 'minor' change?"

"There is no mention of preliminary findings of studies showing calcium efflux, changes in hormonal and immunologic responses or, most recently, cancer. The EIR concludes there will be an increase in microwave radiation in Cachagua Valley from the proposed project.

"It also says the levels of radiation are reversible if the earth station were to stop operation. The effects of that radiation may not be reversible, and we do not wish to be the unfortunate guinea pigs who find this out later."

THE EIR is deficient in its failure to mention that the expanded COMSAT station would become an enemy target, according to retired Lt. Col. Robert Coffin of Carmel.

"No mention is made of the fact that once the facility is completed, it will become a major concern to the Department of Defense as a major national security installation," Coffin wrote.

"In times of emergency, armed guards — including members of the armed forces — will be stationed at and near the facility to protect it from hostile action.

"No mention is made of the established fact that the facility is a 'soft target,' easily destroyed or put out of action by low-powered weapons systems.

"A determined, trained squad of about six men could put this installation out of action for up to a year using only mortars and other readily-available weapons, probably with no losses to themselves. This fact should be considered under alternatives, as dispersing satellite facilities is a means of ensuring that some survive to keep vital communications going."

Council to consider winter recreation

A PROPOSED winter recreation program is to be presented to the Carmel City Council next week.

The council will meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 16 at city hall.

The city-appointed recreation commission will present a series of possible recreation offerings for the council to review.

Although a final recommendation had not been prepared by press time, committee chairman Ken White gave a brief summary of the proposal and his reaction to a 100-signature petition that opposes a city-offered recreation program.

In contrast to the summer recreation program, the committee wants to open winter activities to all ages.

All except one of the summer programs were offered for youth. The only exception was the senior citizen swimming program in which members of the Carmel Foundation were bused to the Seaside municipal swimming pool. That program has continued through this fall.

For younger children, the committee plans to recommend some kind of day care program similar to the summer activities, White said.

White pointed out that the summer day care program — at 75 cents per hour — paid its own way.

"We are really concerned about the number of working parents we have in this community who need a safe, healthy and supervised program. These parents are willing to pay their own way if such a program is offered," White said.

"The River School Parent Club came to us and said that's what is needed. They have said the program will be self-supporting. We are not asking for anything else other than a self-supporting program."

There also needs to be some kind of program offered for middle school-age children, the committee believes.

"I am shocked and concerned for the middle school parents. We have seen a younger child than ever before appearing on Scenic Road with the set group of high school and college students," White said.

"We need something for these kids like an organized beach activity such as volleyball, skate boarding or mini-surfing," he said.

"The council might want to take a positive step toward behavior modification. They have tried more policing to keep the kids from hanging out at Scenic Road. Why not something more positive?"

There also has been interest expressed by some of the 35-to-50 age group residents who would like to see organized activities such as volleyball and slow-down basketball, White said.

THE COMMITTEE plans to recommend that kind of activity as part of the winter recreation program.

More activities will be available to senior citizens if the council approves the proposed winter program, White said.

The committee would like to see school facilities opened so the Carmel Foundation has more room to offer additional activities, he said.

"The foundation is full. They have no place to expand and the recreation committee desperately is trying to facilitate a program so the foundation can have more programs in more areas — for example the schools," he said.

The program is not a shoo-in, however.

Carmel resident George Faul at the Oct. 2 meeting presented the council with a petition bearing about 100 signatures.

The petitioners claim that the winter program — except for the senior citizen swim in Seaside — is unnecessary.

The petitioners claim that Sunset Center, the Carmel Youth Center and the Carmel Foundation already offer many programs.

And they object to city taxpayers' funds being used to offer recreational services to "outsiders."

"We have said that our activities will be in the areas not presently being provided. We said that to the council," White responded.

And White reminded that the committee has recommended a "start slow and build" philosophy with just a part-time supervisor.

The committee, in the beginnings of a program, does not recommend hiring a full-time recreation coordinator or the establishment of a recreation commission, he added.

White said the summer program charged more to outside-the-city residents so those participants did mostly pay their own way.

White said it is important for the city and school district to work together for the betterment of the community.

He pointed out that the state Supreme Court has ruled that school districts cannot charge fees for extra-curricular activities. Thus, most financially-pressed schools have been forced to abandon recreation activities.

The petitioners also claim that the Youth Center offers activities for students.

"I don't think those who signed the petition realize the problems we're having up there," White said in reference to the internal bickering and lack of activities at the youth center.

The committee also has underway a thorough analysis of how many children who participated in the summer recreation program are city residents, White said.

That report is to be presented to the council Oct. 16.

A preliminary report by summer program Supervisor Steve Taylor indicates that about 3 percent of the 550 participants lived "outside the Carmel area," which means the boundaries of the Carmel Unified School District.

However, there were no firm figures on just how many reside within the incorporated city limits of Carmel.

The summer program had an approximately $21,000 budget. User fees generated $14,581 so the actual cost to the city was about $7,000, Taylor reported.

Faul could not be reached for comment on how many of the 100 signatures on his petition were those of Carmel residents.

Rand praised in confidential report to board

By MICHAEL GARDNER

TWO MONTHS before the controversy that eventually led to Supt. William Rand's resignation Monday, consultants warned of considerable turmoil in the Carmel Unified School District and praised Rand as "highly competent" and "strong in human relations."

The June 11 confidential report was written by a two-member "District Management Team Service," which is a free program established by the Association of California School Administrators and the California School Boards Association.

The report raises questions about the intent of an Aug. 20 board decision to hire a consultant to improve communications among trustees and between Supt. William Rand and the board.

Why would trustees need a separate study when in June they were presented with a report that outlined most of the basic problems that confront the district?

Trustee Susan Bromfield told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook the report is a "perception" of the team and not the same as having consultants actually work with the board on improving communications.

Mrs. Bromfield said the team spent 30 minutes with each of the 12 administrators and five trustees.

She explained that the report was supposed to be confidential and that's why it never appeared on the board agenda for public discussion.

"It's private and confidential and it's a leak from somewhere," she said.

The report was unveiled by parent Richard Stott during the Oct. 8 meeting when Rand announced his resignation.

The report was written after a June 5-6 visit to the district by the team of Ray Charlson, a former Monterey County Board of Education superintendent and Janet Lindgren, a trustee of the Oxnard High School District.

Although there are hints of praise for the school board, the reporting team made some highly-critical remarks about trustees and their actions.

One of the key statements in the study indicates that Supt. William Rand is more than capable.

This raises a question about why a majority of the board (Robert Fenton, James Yates and Susan Bromfield) would want to see Rand resign.

"Superintendent Rand is highly competent, open, available and supportive of staff. He is strong in human relations. Teachers and administrators are supportive of him despite small pay increases. Union negotiations over the years have had no confrontations."

TRUSTEES THIS year hired a private negotiator and now find themselves in the middle of a bitter contract dispute.

Some of the key disparaging statements in the report are:

- "It appears there is a serious need for mutual trust, respect and confidence between board and administrators."

- "Communications among all board members are not good. Some members feel they have not received equal information on certain issues being considered."

- "The role of the board president in communicating with the members and in developing the board agenda is not clear."

- "The administration staff feels many of the board's new ideas have merit, but procedures should include appropriate information and input from the administrators before any rush to board decision.

"At this stage, the administrative staff is uncertain as to how they are regarded by the board. Are they appreciated and respected as professionals? Is their expertise welcomed in the decision making process?"

"There is no quarrel with the board's authority to decide. The concern is with adequate discussion, information and input prior to decision."

(Board President Robert Fenton and Trustee James Yates did meet privately with the district administration Oct. 5 to iron out some problems.)

- "Some board members appear uninformed about the district's program and procedures for evaluation of job performance by staff."

- "Some administrators feel their reception by the board at its meetings has not been pleasant because of undue criticism and abrasive comment."

- "The board in its discussions and expressions of concern about curriculum and instruction appears not to adequately recognize the needs of the less capable and average learner."

But not all of the comments were critical of the district. Some of the more encouraging statements are:

- "New board has the potential for being an excellent board. It is student-centered, seeks academic improvement, seeks to be well-informed and is focusing on where it wants the district to go."

- "Board is willing to face difficult or unpopular decisions. And it is seeking closure on some longstanding and much discussed issues."

- "Board and administration are developing some long range goals for the district."

'BOARD members represent a variety of skills, expertise and background that is extremely helpful, if shared by all board members, as the board studies, discusses and decides issues.

- "The administrative staff is highly competent and student-centered. It expresses a strong loyalty to the district."

- "Administrative staff morale is high and there is mutual trust, respect and support among its members."

The report also cites strong community support, better discipline and high test scores as achievements of the district.

The consultants recommend that:

- Trustees and administrators work together in special meetings in a "serious effort" to "recognize those barriers that prevent the development of trust and confidence and remove those barriers as quickly as possible."

- The board and administration establish procedures for more staff suggestions about policy and decisions.

- "The present situation in the district appears to be one where the board is moving ahead on its agenda with limited discussion and input from administrative staff," according to the report.

- "Professional expertise is being neglected and administrators are puzzled and uncertain about their roles."

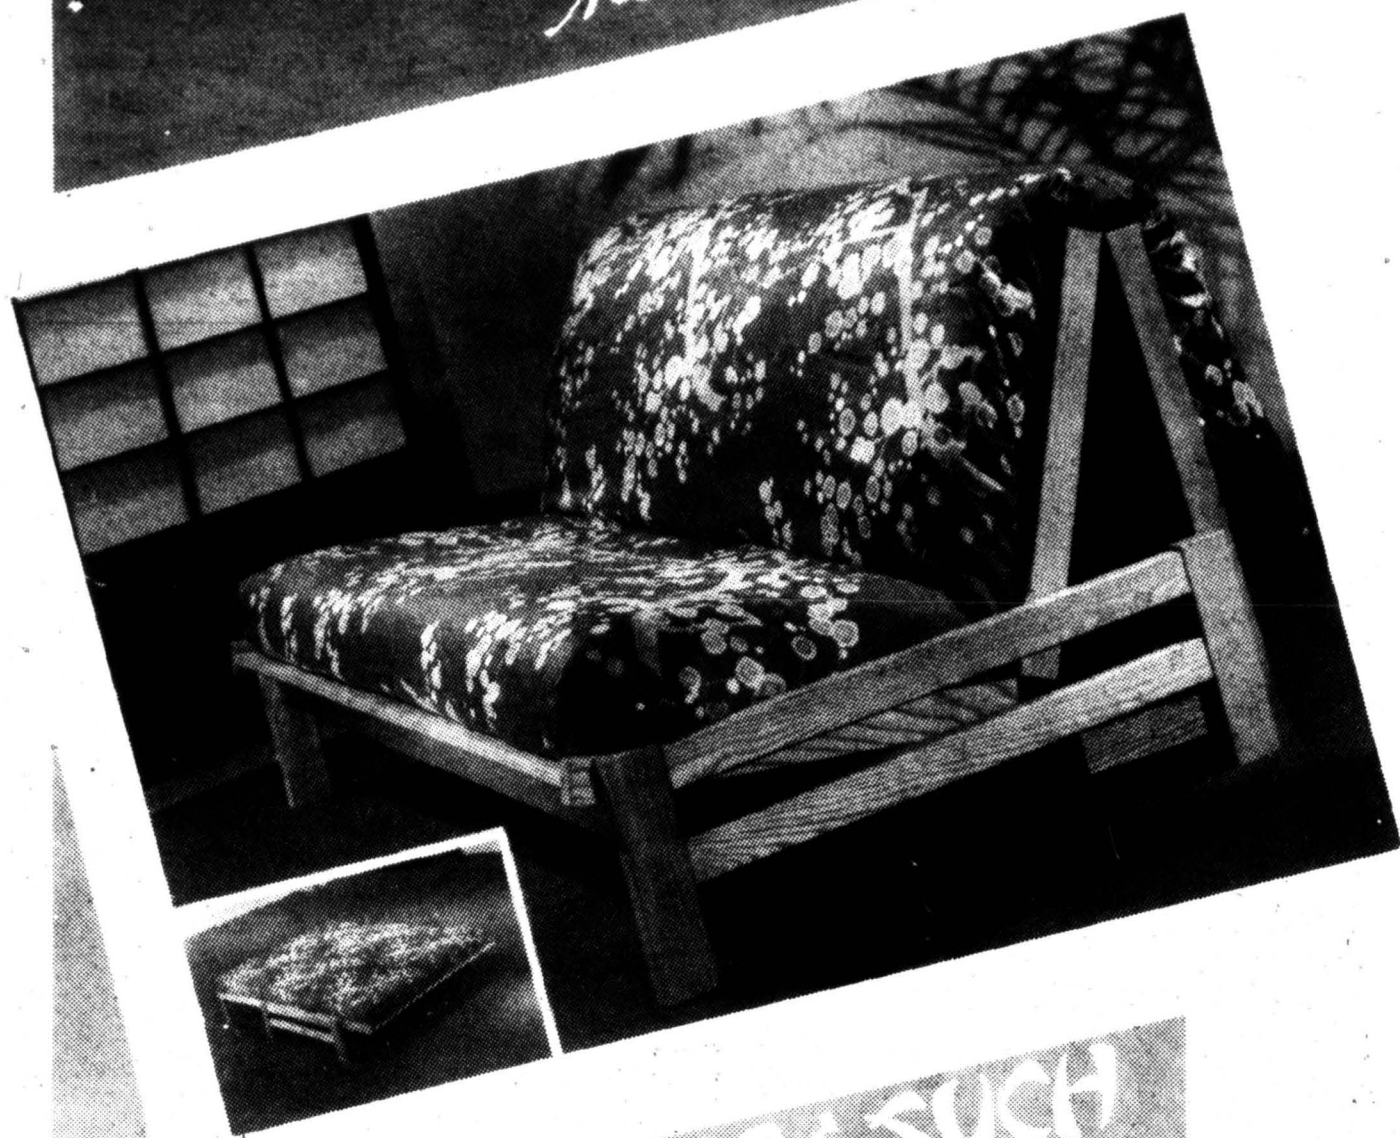

- The board has to become more familiar with the roles and responsibilities of administrators.

- "By familiarizing themselves with the role and responsibilities of administrators, board members will be realistic in initiating activities that make serious time demands on administrative staff."

- A study session is needed on "board communications, the president's role, and the development of a board agenda."

- The responsibilities of the board and administrators need to be more clearly defined.

Carmel council to seek ways to protect Gamble estate in Oct. 11 meet

By MICHAEL GARDNER

IS THERE a way for Carmel to protect the Gamble estate from overdevelopment without spending more than $1 million to buy it?

The Carmel City Council hopes to find an answer to that question when it meets in a special session at 4 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 11 at city hall.

The council may be forced to back down from its attempts to buy the 56,000 sq. ft. property after it was announced at an Oct. 4 session that the estate has rejected a $1.1 million city offer to purchase the land between Dolores and Lincoln streets and Santa Lucia and 13th avenues.

Or a majority of the council may decide to increase its bid in an attempt to ensure city purchase of the site.

The original plan of the council was to buy the property for $1.1 million and then resell it with restrictions to keep it from being developed to its maximum density allowed under current zoning codes.

The property is divided into 12 lots of record. Eight are 4,000 sq. ft. and the other four are 6,000 sq. ft.

The council is worried that 12 more houses on the property would adversely affect the surrounding neighborhood with the potential increase in traffic and construction of large two-story homes.

The council also likes the open space and trees afforded by the property. The large vacant house also is included in the significant buildings inventory of the Carmel General Plan.

But council plans apparently have been dashed by the refusal of the $1.1 million offer. The property is part of an estate operated by Crocker Bank for seven heirs and two other trusts.

No official appraisal of the property has been made for several years. If the lots sold for an average of $150,000 each (the current market rate for this area) then the property would be valued at about $1.6 million.

The council also has hired an appraiser to conduct a survey of the property for the city.

Under state probate code, in most cases the executor of the estate cannot accept an offer of less than 90 percent of the value of the land, according to Carmel City Atty. Don Freeman.

At least three of the council members (Mayor Charlotte Townsend, Helen Arnold and Robert Stephenson) did not appear willing to drop out of the bidding at $1.1 million.

The council at its Oct. 4 session decided to postpone any action until staff could prepare a report on other methods the city could use to protect the property.

THOSE protection measures could include strict enforcement of city zoning laws.

The planning commission could refuse to allow a developer to demolish the Gamble home, which is considered a "significant building."

If a developer was forced to keep the house, the amount of new construction could be reduced considerably.

And the forestry department could limit the number of trees the developer could remove, which also would make it difficult to build on all 12 lots.

But any attempt to zone the area for less density, such as 6,000 sq. ft., may not be 'The only way I could move on this is if it would be at no risk to the city. I think $1.5 million is borderline. It's putting the city into risk and I can't do that.'

allowed because so-called "spot-zoning" is illegal.

Councilmen James Wright and David Maradei recommended the city drop out of the bidding and let the existing zoning codes help control density.

"I'm not convinced that acquisition is the only way to achieve our purpose," Wright said.

"The level of development on that property could run into serious problems in the general plan," Maradei added in reference to the controls the general plan allows the city to use to decrease density.

The staff report to be presented is expected to include a series of possible non-financial

Former board president lauds Rand

OUTGOING CARMEL Unified School District Supt. William Rand is a "man of integrity — a doer, not a talker" who will be "sorely missed," says former school board President Ken White.

White had nothing but praise for Rand during an interview with the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook the day after Rand announced his resignation. (See related stories, this issue.)

"I think that when we lost Bill Rand we lost a rather forward thinking superintendent in terms of problems that we'll be facing in the district," said White, who was president of the board from 1980 to 1983 and worked closely with Rand.

"He is an extremely intelligent and thorough superintendent. Being in education for so many years I have worked with five superintendents. I think I can judge," White continued.

Rand always was on top of any major problem to confront the district, White said.

"He did not allow major problems to fall through the cracks. He led us through the toughest times in the district (closing schools, Prop. 13 budget cuts and declining enrollment)," he said.

White said many people are not aware of Rand's "tremendous" contributions to the district because the superintendent preferred to do the background work and stay out of the limelight.

"In our community we sometimes think we know more than the professional. Because of that we overlook the extremely competent people like Bill Rand who are quiet and not drum-beaters.

"Bill many times did the organizational work for very serious decision-making. He always gave someone else the credit. He did not seem interested in personal accolades for the success of a decision or a program.

"I saw that in Bill and I really respect that. To me he was a doer and not a talker," White said.

White added that he is "very concerned" about the future of the district as trustees hunt for a new superintendent.

"My big concern now is how are we going to get the work done? I think the only way we're going to stay above water will be thanks to a determined and competent staff," he said.

White questioned whether trustees have placed too much pressure on an "already overworked" Rich Hawkins, acting superintendent and director of instruction.

"There are things that aren't going to get done. We've assigned an extremely overworked person to additional duties of superintendent. I've seen Rich's car in front of the district office on Saturdays and Sundays just about every weekend."

KEN WHITE, former president of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education, praised outgoing Supt. William Rand and questioned the type of new superintendent the school board will find in mid-year.

Sierra Club opposes plan for hotel south of Carmel

The Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club has announced its opposition to any development on Michael's Hill, which is included in the proposed Point Lobos Ranch project.

Spokesman Rod Holmgren told the Monterey County Board of Supervisors Oct. 9 that commercial development on Huckleberry Ridge in the area known as "Michael's Hill" is inconsistent with the Carmel Area Local Coastal Program.

Supervisors accepted public comment on the proposed amendment to the land use plan of the LCP that would allow commercial development on Michael's Hill.

However, a decision was postponed until supervisors meet at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 16 in the county courthouse in Salinas.

Fifth District Supervisor William Peters of Carmel Valley has sponsored the land use program amendment so that Point Lobos Ranch developers can build an inn, conference center and restaurant on Michael's Hill.

Developers previously had presented a plan to build two restaurants, two motels and a conference center in the flatland area on the east side of Highway 1 across from Point Lobos Reserve.

The land use plan prohibits commercial development on Michael's Hill. The amendment would change wording of the plan to give developers what they want.

Developers' plans also envision about 42 homes scattered on Huckleberry Ridge, but not on Michael's Hill.

"Discussion of these amendments by your board is premature for several reasons," Holmgren told supervisors in a prepared statement.

Much of Holmgren's arguments center on potential traffic problems and development intrusion in the scenic viewshed.

"One of the most important is that the environmental impact report on the Point Lobos Ranch plan is not completed," said Holmgren, who was a member of the citizens advisory committee that helped develop the Carmel area land use plan.

Holmgren said the development would increase traffic on Highway 1 by 37 percent, or 4,400 vehicle trips per day. The draft EIR states that a "reduced-intensity" project would help mitigate traffic problems.

Holmgren continued that developers redesigned the plan but there was "no reduction made in intensity of development."

Holmgren also argued that the proposal is inconsistent with the Carmel Area Local Coastal Program.

"The LCP designates Michael's Hill as 'watershed and scenic conservation' and does not include restaurants, conference centers or inn units among permitted uses in watershed and scenic conservation areas."

Holmgren concluded with the statement that supervisors should delay action for three reasons:

- "First the EIR on the Point Lobos Ranch has not been completed.

- "Second the county has just started a complete rezoning of the coastal zone, including this property.

- "Third these amendments have not yet been considered by the county planning commission, which is due to take them up tomorrow (Oct. 10)."

steps the city could consider to ensure a low density for the property.

Maradei was particularly concerned about the effects an increased and perhaps successful bid would have on the property.

Maradei questioned whether the city would risk the future of current projects — and perhaps put the now-healthy budget in jeopardy — by raising its offer on the property.

"I think this is going to boil down to a matter of dollars," Maradei said.

Maradei said a successful bid of $1.5 million could place the city in a precarious financial condition. He questioned what would happen to current city projects should the city be unsuccessful in re-selling the property.

"The only way I could move on this is if it would be at no risk to the city," he said. "I think $1.5 million is borderline. It's putting the city into risk and I can't do that."

Mayor Charlotte Townsend disagreed with Maradei. "You seldom win unless you're willing to take risks, David," she said.

Councilman Robert Stephenson said he was ready to up the bid.

"I'm in favor of making a greater effort to buy it...I still think our best way to protect it is to purchase it," he said.

STEPHENSON said the city could buy the land, rezone it for nine 6,000 sq. ft. lots and then resell each lot for $200,000 each.

That would give the city $1.8 million. "That seems reasonable," he said.

Stephenson also did not agree with Maradei's hope that perhaps a developer who does not want maximum density will buy the property.

"They're only out for a buck. They will develop it to the maximum and I don't want to risk that," Stephenson said.

Maradei questioned: "To what dollar amount would you be willing to go?"

"I'm not sure at the moment," Stephenson responded.

"I'm not above taking a slight risk. I'm certainly not going to sell the city down the drain," Stephenson said.

Stephenson told the council that he has seen "too many mistakes" made because the city got "cold feet" when thinking about buying property.

He said that the city had a chance to buy the property which now is the location of Carmel Plaza. And the city could have bought some residential land near the Cherry Foundation.

But since the city didn't, there are developments on both sides that are not in the character of Carmel, he said.

Wright added that the city is at a "disadvantage" because it has to publicize the bid so any developer can just come to the probate court hearing and offer a higher bid when the judge calls for more proposals from the audience.

Councilwoman Helen Arnold is a staunch supporter of another try to buy the property.

Mrs. Arnold said she polled neighbors of the Gamble estate and "all of them" support the purchase.

She also read a letter from Arthur and Jane Shedlin, who support the purchase.

"(We) fully support and applaud the city council members in their attempt to purchase the property known as the Gamble estate for the purpose of safeguarding the character of the city of Carmel.

"We feel that in this way the city can maintain a beautiful site containing luxuriant greenery and trees in keeping with the Carmel image and beauty," they wrote.

But Maradei pointed out that "obviously" the neighbors support keeping the property in open space because that will raise their property values.

Several members of the audience also spoke to the issue.

Dr. Don Davidson, an ex-planning commissioner and former member of the General Plan Advisory Committee, called the offer "insane."

DAVIDSON pointed out the city has zoned the residential district for 4,000 sq. ft. lots and now the council wants to change it.

He called development of the eight 4,000 sq. ft. lots as "consistent" with the general plan.

Carmel resident Jonathan Braudrick questioned whether the purchase would "bankrupt" the city if the council is unable to resell the lots.

Braudrick asked if the council knew how it was going to pay for the purchase if the offer is increased and accepted.

He never got a reply to his answer.

However, two weeks ago City Administrator Doug Schmitz said there is no reason for staff to spend the time to develop a financing scheme until after the offer is accepted.

Earlier last week before the council learned its offer had been rejected, the Carmel Planning Commission agreed that the purchase is consistent with the general plan.

That ruling was necessary before the city could proceed with the purchase, under state law.

Commissioner Richard Barrett was the only planner to oppose the ruling.

Barrett believes that there are provisions in the general plan that would support maximum development. He said the general plan has the property zoned for 4,000 sq. ft. lots.

And the general plan also urges that the city try to increase permanent housing stock, he said.

Council to discuss water supply at Oct. 16 session

THE CARMEL City Council will discuss the precarious water supply when it meets at 4 p.m. Oct. 16 at city hall.

The extent of the discussion will be dependent on the Oct. 8 Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Board of Directors meeting, city Planner Brian Roseth told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook.

District directors discussed the water allocation formula and peninsula-wide water use. (See related story, this issue.)

The council on Oct. 2 was to discuss its reaction to the latest water use figures that indicate Carmel has used 98 percent of its water allocation.

However, the city still did not have a complete written report from the water district so the issue was postponed until Oct. 16. That report is to include detailed information on how much water commercial and residential used, and trends, Roseth said.

The council faces a precarious situation. The water district could order a moratorium on all new building if the city exceeds its annual allocation limit of 1,030 acre feet. (There are 325,851 gallons in an acre foot.)

The city used 1,017 acre feet, or 98 percent of its water supply in water year July 1983 to June 1984.

The city general plan and local coastal program have several provisions to restrict growth if Carmel exceeds its water allocation.

One section in the LCP, which has been endorsed by the council but not yet formally adopted, would establish a priority system for development if the city exceeds 95 percent of its water allocation.

First priority would be for new residential development. Second priority is to go to other developments "that increase the permanent housing stock" in the city. Last in line for water is new commercial projects.

Finegan also told planners that the Carmel Valley Master Plan would allow a maximum build-out in the Valley of about 7,000 units.

There are about 5,125 business, residential and commercial units now and another 2,181 units to be allowed under the allocation system in the master plan, Finegan said.

Since Rancho San Carlos is two-thirds the size of Carmel Valley (28,000 acres), Finegan argued that it should be allowed at least the 3,800 units.

In another matter earlier in the day, planners rezoned the Mission Ranch Resort complex to make it "conforming."

The resort includes 26 motel units, a barn used for entertainment, a restaurant and tennis courts.

The rezoning basically legitimizes the operation while plans get underway to demolish the resort and build an approximately 65-unit residential development on the 20-acre site just south of the city limits near Carmel Mission.

The property previously was considered a "non-conforming" use because years after the resort opened the county zoned the area for residential development. But because the resort was there before the zoning, it was allowed to operate under a "non-conforming" status.

BUSINESS BEAT BY NANCY HILLS

'The $43 billion hangover'

A "$43 billion hangover" is not an after-the-party joke for American business and industry. According to the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, it is the annual cost of alcohol abuse to business and industry in this country.

Loss of production alone accounts for $19.8 billion. In California, the overall cost of alcohol abuse is $6.8 billion, with $3.2 billion of that in lost production.

"It is estimated that 5 to 10 percent of the adult population in the U.S. is alcoholic," said George Staub, the new administrator of Brightside Alcohol/Chemical Dependency Treatment Center in Carmel. "It is unrealistic to assume an individual business has any less a percent of alcoholic employees."

To help an individual business owner or company understand what these statistics mean to them, Donna Stewart, community liaison for Brightside, always begins her talks to business and community groups by giving them a formula to work out the cost within their own business.

"Take your average annual payroll and multiply it by .10 (for 10 percent employees) then multiply that by 25 (for 25 percent loss of efficiency) to equal your annual loss," Ms. Stewart said. The cost can be staggering, she added.

Even though research strongly suggests that alcoholism is a physical disease and most insurance policies cover hospitalization, many employers still approach the problem by simply firing any employee suspected of being an alcoholic. This is a practice that Staub and Ms. Stewart feel is financially and socially unsound.

"You cannot cut out 10 percent of your work force and it makes economic and humane sense to treat this illness," Staub said. "An employer would not lay off someone for heart disease or diabetes. Alcoholism is the most treatable incurable disease in the world. With some effort and cooperation from the employer, there can be a real payoff."

"Most of our alcohol and substance abuse users are superb employees. The calls we get from an employer wanting to help say: 'He is wonderful' or 'She is marvelous. She is the best secretary I have ever had, but when she is drinking I just can't depend on her,'" Staub added.

In the past, Staub explained, it was thought that the alcoholic had to "hit bottom," let the disease get as bad as it could, before treatment could start. It now has been found that early intervention can facilitate and sustain recovery.

"We found we can intervene on that (disease) process and bring the 'bottom' much further up. The best place to do this is the workplace," Staub said.

"The employer must be aware of his or her worker's behavior," Ms. Stewart said. "Look for Monday morning absences, long lunches, a lot of unexplained absenteeism, frequent trips to the water fountain, and most important, the quality of the work," Ms. Stewart added.

"There are two things we ask the employer to do," Staub said. "First of all, we ask the employer to document the work performance and not be the diagnostician. The employer should say to the employee: 'You have been late five times this week and I am concerned' rather than 'You have been late five times this week and I think you are an alcoholic.'"

The latter approach only brings out the defenses, Staub pointed out, and alcoholism is a disease of denial. After the work performance review, the employer can refer the employee to someone qualified to make a diagnosis. That can be an agency such as Brightside, a qualified employee assistance counselor, or a physician known to understand the symptoms and diagnostic procedure for alcoholism.

Many doctors are not trained in this area and it is difficult to diagnose alcoholism, as the patient usually will deny the addiction or avoid any reference to it. In keeping with this problem, Ms. Stewart pointed out that it might be better to refer the employee to a specific person within an agency rather than the agency in general.

"The boss then judges the person not by whether or not they have been drinking but by whether or not the work performance has improved. This gets the employer out of the personal life. It does not matter (to the employer) that someone has two glasses of wine at dinner, but only that the employee stops coming in late, the long lunches discontinue and the quality of work improves," Staub said. This improvement should be a condition of continued employment, he added.

It is important that the employer not make a diagnosis based on symptoms he or she observes. It has been found that among employees who display the symptoms of alcoholism, only 60 percent are alcoholics. The others may have other physical, personal, and relationship problems that induce similar behavior.

Even if diagnosis is alcoholism, Brightside does not always suggest that the employee needs hospitalization. Depending on the severity of the disease, there are many other forms of treatment, including Alcoholics Anonymous, a group with which Brightside works closely. AA has two meetings a week on Monday and Thursday at Brightside and patients are asked to go through the first five steps of AA's 12-step recovery program.

"Alcoholism is not hopeless," Staub said. "Employee assistance programs in large companies started in 1960 and are showing such a high incidence of success that more and more industries are adding them."

Staub has been in the alcohol and chemical abuse field for 25 years and he has seen changes in both professional attitudes and in the nature of abuse.

"When I gave a talk 25 years ago, I would stand up and say that alcoholism was 90 percent psychological and 10 percent physical. Now I stand up and say almost the exact opposite," Staub said.

"When I came into the field in 1960, we always saw pure alcoholics and it remained that way until the very end of the 60s when we started seeing mixed abuse usage."

The current patient load at Brightside reflects this change. "Our average age (for patients) is young — about 30 years old — so our patient load is 100 percent mixed abusers," Staub said, adding that he feels this accurately reflects the profile of the chemically dependent population.

"It is rare to find anyone just using cocaine or just using alcohol," Staub said.

Treatment at Brightside begins with a two-day detoxification, then a month of learning and therapeutic process where the patient is helped to understand that: 1) alcoholism/chemical dependency is an illness and does not detract from personal worth; 2) it is treatable; 3) the patient needs treatment to salvage his or her life; 4) recovery involves learning to deal with life stress without chemicals; and 5) many other people and families have recovered or successfully arrested these illnesses. The cost of hospitalization includes two years of outpatient treatment, which Staub believes is essential to sustain recovery.

Besides the two AA meetings, Brightside has started an Adult Children of Alcoholics group on Tuesdays, and a Narcotics Anonymous group at the center on Fridays.

Staub was appointed the new director of Brightside by St. Benedict's Health Systems, a non-profit organization, when it took over Brightside from the Careage Corp. this September.

During his 25 years in this field, he has served as the director of the State of California Alcoholism program, director of the Los Angeles County Affiliate of the National Council on Alcoholism and as a member of the State Advisory Board of Alcohol Abuse. St. Benedict has treatment centers in Utah, Idaho and Montana and has been in the alcohol/chemical dependency treatment field for many years.

Staub was born and grew up in Hollister, and feels a special affiliation with Carmel. He has two ancestors buried at the Carmel Mission — something to which only a ninth generation Californian can lay claim.

UPSTAIRS SELECTIONS OPENS DOORS

Upstairs Selections, a new antique shop owned by sisters Karleen Tarola and Margie Tuck opened its doors Sept. 30 in the Stonehouse Terrace on San Carlos Street near Seventh Avenue.

"We chose that date for our opening because it is our parents' 55th wedding anniversary and we thought it would be a good omen," Margie explained.

"We want to offer hand-selected pieces other people will be able to use and enjoy," Margie said. She added that they wanted to offer items that are "functional for today's lifestyle" and "take into consideration today's smaller living spaces."

The antiques are displayed in the large, window-filled shop in a manner that, Margie hopes, "will help people to see how it will look when they get it home. We want to incorporate a 'home feel' to the shop."

"I don't think of myself as selling, but rather helping someone find something they like," she said.

The pieces they have for sale in the shop include a large Louie Vuitton French steamer trunk that had been on the Orient Express, a "special" French Armoire from the 1700s, a 1790s grandfather clock, and a 1761 hand-painted Alpine chest from Switzerland. There are a few items that are not antique, but fun and interesting.

These items include Thai Household Spirit Guards, wooden boxes called Ongs that are hand carved and painted to resemble animals. One rather unique piece in the shop is an early 1900s city council desk from Birmingham, England, with inkwells and names still in place.

Margie was a real estate agent with Bock Realty in Carmel for 10 years, whose love of antiques grew out of her love for traveling. She has been to Europe several times and looks forward to going back for more antique hunting. Her husband, Jerome Tuck, owns and operates Jerome's of Pebble Beach Hair Salon and Gentlemen's Quarters at the Pebble Beach Lodge. Her partner and sister owns Tarola's, an antique and candle shop located beneath Upstairs Selections in the Stonehouse Terrace.

LODGE ADDS NEW BOUTIQUE

The Pebble Beach Lodge has a "new addition," Pebbles, a boutique that specializes in clothes, toys and accessories for infants and toddlers up to size seven.

Patricia Loftus, retail manager for the Lodge, opened the shop to respond to the many requests that the other stores there received for children's items.

"We wanted to do something the other stores in town haven't done, concentrate on active wear and bright, fun clothes," Patricia said.

One big help in picking out merchandise was that both Patricia and Yuriko Weathers, manager of Pebbles, have two-year-olds of their own.

"We looked for things we would want to buy," Patricia said.

The shop has a variety of items other than clothes, such as 1,500 hats with the Pebble Beach logo, "fun, whimsical shoes," books, stuffed toys and "fabulous Halloween costumes."

"Nobody walks out with just one thing," Patricia said.

The clothes are not only fun but practical. With the grandmother who has to buy for six grandchildren uppermost in mind, they not only carry designer children's clothes but many mid-priced items.

"The response has been tremendous," she said. Some items like "elephant face shoes" and Disney-character leather suspenders are so popular they have a hard time keeping them in stock.

"It's fun things for the kids," she said. "Bring the children," Patricia said. "We love the children!"

CARMELITES PURCHASE BUGABOO

Carmel residents Bob and Joyce Forlizzo have recently purchased Bugaboo Mountaineering, a local company that retails outdoor equipment, fashionable outdoor wear and down products that it manufactures. The sale became final Oct. 1.

The small down manufacturing plant in Sand City employs four people who make by hand the various down products such as sleeping bags, jackets, vests, comforters, booties and baby bunting.

"Anything made with down," is what Ms. Forlizzo said they stock.

There are three retail stores called Bugaboo — one in The Barnyard and two in Pacific Grove. Another Pacific Grove shop that concentrates on general athletic wear, Tin Can Sports, was included in the sale.

FOCUS plans autumn event

A night of dining and dancing under the stars to benefit Friends of the Carmel Unified School District (FOCUS) is planned Saturday, Oct. 27 at the Forest Theater in Carmel.

The evening will include a steak dinner, beverages, a surprise talent show, and dancing to "Music Unlimited," interspersed with song and dance routines led by master of ceremonies Bud Allen.

A drawing will be conducted during the evening for various prizes, including an original painting by James Peter Cost executed especially for the FOCUS benefit.

The fund-raising benefit will mark the fifth year that FOCUS has benefitted academic and extra-curricular programs in the Carmel public schools. Parents, teachers, and friends of Carmel school children are all invited.

FOCUS has raised more than $150,000 in the last five years, but the need for additional funds continues, according to Jennifer Santee, FOCUS spokeswoman.

"In a culturally-oriented community such as Carmel, the music programs in the middle and high schools are a must and have been substantially supported," she said. "The after-school sports program at the middle school was high on the list for funds. In addition, playground equipment, photo classes, social science classes, library and literature books, mechanical drawing and special education equipment, counseling and gifted and talented programs have had some financial support."

Cost of the evening — which includes dinner and drinks — is $25 per person, which is tax deductible. Reservations may be made by calling 646-4655.

Six club members served as on-site clerks — Fred Bell, Milt Frincke, Ted Fehring, Jack Shearer, Milt Stitt and Chris Christon.

And six nurses from the Carmel Red Cross, Fort Ord and through friends of club members.

A total of 106 screenings were performed between 10 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., according to Gil McDowell, club spokesman. Forty-nine persons were found to be within normal blood sugar levels, but 14 had elevated levels, he said.

A total of $65 was collected in the Lions donation can.

FORMER PUBLISHER SEEKS OLD FRIENDS

Former Carmel Pine Cone publisher Carlos Drake has written from Portugal to ask the whereabouts of some Carmelites he recalls from his days as publisher from 1940-42.

"Would you please be so kind as to tell me if Mrs. Margaret Dienelt still lives in Carmel Highlands and operates (with her son) the Mission Ranch at the end of Dolores Street?" Drake wrote.

"I'm very curious, too, about Mrs. Gabriel Kuster, widow of Ted Kuster, who used to operate the Golden Bough Theater. It has been a long time since I have heard from these pleasant people."

Anyone with knowledge of these folks who wants to respond, may address Carlos Drake at 91A Rua da Bela Vista, 2750 Cascais, Portugal.

RANCHO LIONS OBSERVE WORLD SERVICE DAY

Members of the Carmel Rancho Lions Club helped to paint the pool house at the Carmel Valley Community Center Sept. 29, in observance of World Service Day.

Lions Gary Anloff, Frank Catalano, Ralph Morrow, Earl Slade, and Ron Wright — led by Lion Freddie Villanueva — manned the paint brushes and were cheerfully supported by Beth Morrow.

"The center is used by great numbers of Valley residents and a number of swim teams use the pool," said R.L. Brandley, club spokesman. "The Carmel Rancho Lions have made painting and maintenance at the center an annual effort."

In performance of this community service, the local Lions unit participated in World Service Day, which was observed by Lions in 150 countries and geographic areas of the world.

New Brushing Concept

The Curved Bristle
IT CLEANS YOUR TEETH EFFECTIVELY NO MATTER HOW YOU BRUSH

"CURVED BRISTLES MAKE SENSE"
Because the bristles are bent to reach the sulcus. The sulcus is the space between the teeth and the gum where the bacteria grow, cause caries and bad breath. The outer bristles are curved and soft to protect and clean the gums. The center bristle is short and stiff to clean the top of the teeth.

SPIRULINA: THE FOOD OF THE FUTURE IS HERE NOW.
Spirulina Plankton is the most basic substance in the whole food chain... Spirulina's high-quality protein contains 18 of 22 amino acids required for health — and all eight essential amino acids in the correct proportion. Protein such as this is rarely found in non-animal sources, so Spirulina is popular with vegetarians. And Spirulina's protein, which provides sustaining energy to the human body, is up to 95 percent, digestible as compared with beef's 20 percent. Several kinds of unusual proteins called biliproteins which occur naturally in our own bodies are found in Spirulina. Spirulina is low in calories, fats and sodium and amazingly high in efficient proteins (containing 60 to 71 percent) and all the cell salts and enzymes for body metabolism.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

"Of all the amusements of old age, the most graceful and soothing is a renewed acquaintance with the favorite studies of youth."

— Adam Smith

Margaret Beinart of Staten Island, New York, provides proof that service to others can be the best source of youth and vigor in our golden years. Margaret still carried on an exhausting schedule of volunteer work at age 82. On Mondays, as a volunteer with the retarded; on Tuesdays, at a local CYO Youth Center; on Wednesdays, at the Lighthouse Association for the Blind; on Thursdays, at a local senior citizens center; during "spare time," volunteer work for her church.

Are you growing a bit thin on top? We like this quote which we overheard recently: "God only made a few perfect heads—the remainder he covered with hair!"

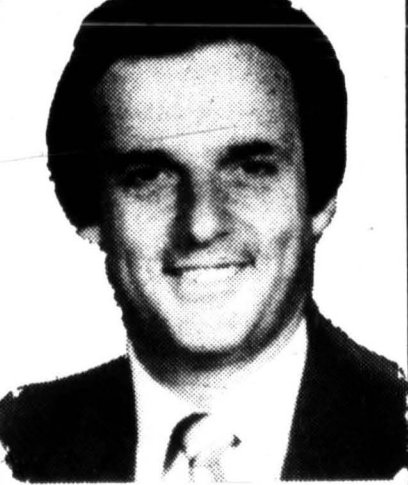

Remember When? December 24, 1943—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was named Supreme Commander of the Allied European invasion forces of World War II.

Presented as a service to our senior citizens and the people who care about them, by the

Laurel and Hardy buffs encouraged to apply

Midnight Patrol recruits fans

By ANNE PAPINEAU

IF YOU can go a round of "earsie-kneesie-nosie" without putting out an eye, can name the short subjects Jean Harlow appeared in and have even caught a screening of Atoll K, then you might just qualify for The Midnight Patrol.

The Carmel-based Midnight Patrol is an off-shoot — the correct term is "tent" — of an international organization known as Sons of the Desert. Like the Moose and Kiwanis, its members pay dues and attend conventions.

But the Midnight Patrol, if you haven't figured it out yet, is not the typical service club. Its focus is the study and enjoyment of movies that star Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy.

"This is just an excuse to have a party," stated Grand Sheik Bill Cassara, Laurel and Hardy grinning from a pin on his collar. Indeed, a gathering of the Midnight Patrol resembles house party more than meeting.

Camaraderie is served with the Bud and bean dip. But five minutes into a screening of Fra Diavolo, newcomers realize that the Midnight Patrol regulars know so much Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy trivia they must have completed master's theses on the two-some — or at least co-starred in a few of the later features.

Examples: "Stan was married seven times to five women. He was a little bit sensitive."

Richard Pryor and Burt Reynolds are

LAUREL AND HARDY'S movie Midnight Patrol provided the name for a group of devoted L&H buffs that meet on the peninsula. Other devotees are invited to attend the working on a remake of The Music Box. If you can't recall The Music Box, do not pass go, do not collect $200.

next gathering of the Midnight Patrol, to take place at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 18, in Monterey.

A pet project of The Midnight Patrol is obtaining a copy of Another Fine Mess, an obscure 1972 film that features Rich Little as Oliver Hardy portraying Richard Nixon. According to Cassara: "The movie appeared for about a week and I never heard about it again. I do remember that Rich Little's voice matched Oliver Hardy's perfectly."

"The requirements are an appreciation of the art of Laurel and Hardy," Cassara said of the tent. "There are not a lot of rules, it's purposely made that way." Stan Laurel's own words about the Sons of the Desert were: "Let there be a half-assed dignity to the organization."

WHILE ITS members possess collective decades of Laurel and Hardy knowledge, The Midnight Patrol is a newly-formed tent, created in May.

For years, Santa Clara County has had its "Blotto" tent, San Francisco its "Call of the Cuckoos." To the uninitiated, tents are named after Laurel and Hardy movies.

The local tent takes its name from a 1933 Laurel and Hardy short about two conscientious but inept patrol policemen. Appropriately, three of the charter members, including Grand Sheik Cassara, work midnight patrol as sheriff's deputies for the Monterey County Sheriff's Department.

"People ought to be able to laugh," is Dave Allard's reason for attending gatherings of the tent. He serves in the investigations division of the sheriff's department.

New as it is, the tent is not to be confused as a "cops only" function. To round out membership, Treasurer/Sub-Vice-Vizier Dave Cotter, the third deputy, is also a member of the Monterey Bay Jazz Band. He introduced his fellow musicians to the group, who say they will bring music to future gatherings.

So far, the Midnight Patrol meets every two or three months at someone's home. At the group's second and most recent gathering, Grand Sheik Cassara opened his home to a collection of Laurel and Hardy addicts. Some arrived wearing "Another Fine Mess" buttons. Phil McCoy, Grand Sheik of the Theatre Festival seeks original musicals

ANYONE WITH the libretto for a showstopping musical flopping in their skull had better commit those notes to paper. If chosen, your musical could be staged by the American Musical Theatre Festival, Inc.

This inaugural competition for musicals is a project of the Carmel-based Sidney Frohman, Jr. Foundation for the Performing Arts. The non-profit festival, an arm of the Frohman Foundation, is soliciting original works as part of its advanced training program.

"I would say we're looking for ones (musicals) that have high entertainment value that people would enjoy," said Festival founding director Mikel Pippi. "... Not terribly experimental but (shows) with future life beyond the festival — shows like Annie."

Authors of the top three Annie's-of-tomorrow entered in the competition will each be given $1,000, Pippi announced. The playwrights will be invited to the Monterey Peninsula to work with festival directors, choreographers and actors to stage all or part of the work.

Entries for this initial competition will be judged by a staff of Frohman Academy trustees and advisers, which include such theater notables as Mickey Rooney, Debbie Reynolds and Kaye Ballard.

The festival will offer playwrights additional exposure through its ties with the National Music Theater Network of New York. Partially funded by the Rockefeller Foundation, the network provides anyone with a new musical the opportunity to have the show listed and evaluated in an annual catalogue sent to producers nationwide.

"We're forming a partnership with the network because we take things the second step. They critique shows; we produce them," Pippi said.

According to submission requirements published by the American Musical Theatre Festival, Inc., only full-length, original musicals with completed scores will be considered. Adaptations are eligible only with a letter of permission from the copyright holder.

Entrants should submit a synopsis of the story and two sample scenes, typed and bound, along with an audio cassette containing two songs from the show.

There is a $20 non-refundable processing fee for each script. The festival will retain the option to produce the selected scripts commercially for one year from the date of the workshop production. Submission deadline is Nov. 30.

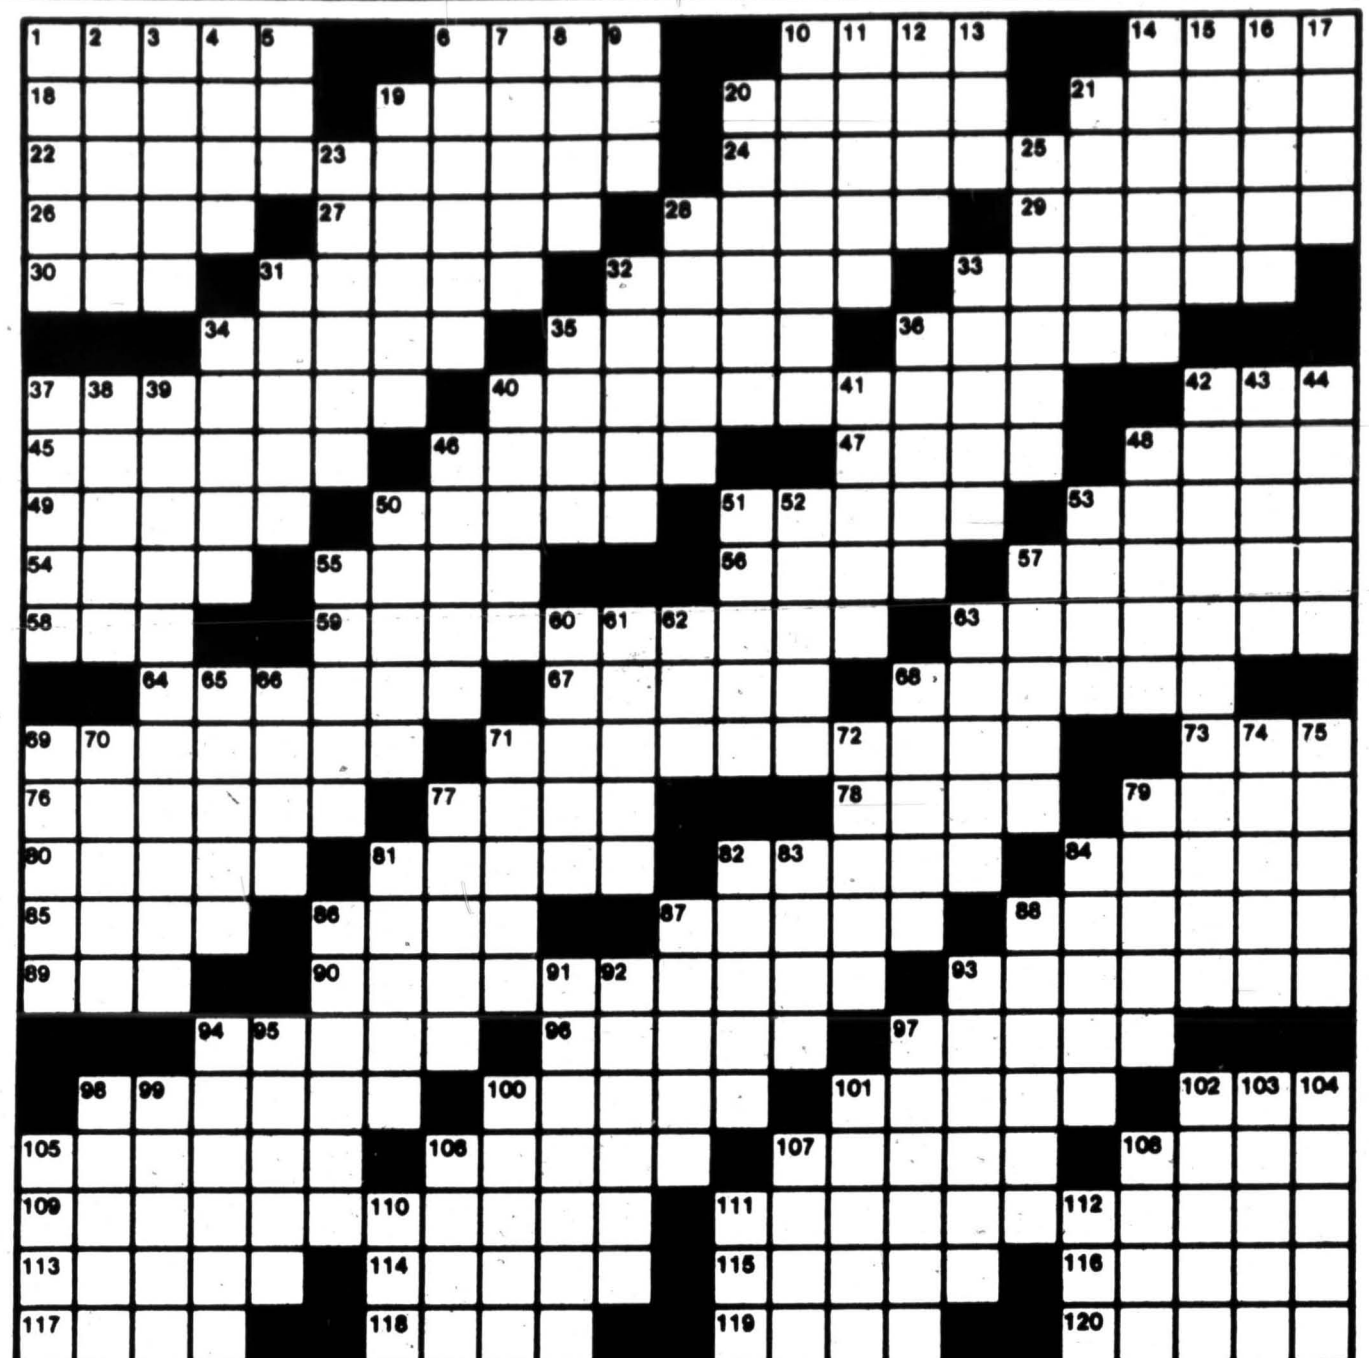

For a full list of requirements for the competition, contact the festival at 625-6866.

ON STAGE

True West

The Monterey Peninsula College Players open a three-week run of the Sam Shepard comedy, True West at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 11, in the MPC Theatre.

This Central Coast premiere on the main stage explores the contradictions and promises of American life. The play contains strong language and is recommended for mature audiences only.

The action revolves around the life of a smooth Hollywood screenwriter who lives in his mother's house and is visited by his older brother, a drifting drunk like the father. The writer has sold a romantic script to his producer, but the brother manages to intervene in the sale and turn the script into his own "true western" version. The tables are turned over and over again as the two brothers hash out their differences.

General admission is $6, $4.50 for seniors and students, and $3 for children under 12. Tickets: 646-4213.

Bus Stop

Bus Stop, William Inge's romantic, bittersweet comedy, opens Friday, Oct. 12, at the Fort Ord Cabaret Theatre. In this American classic, director Michael Cheak creates a touching story of simple people dealing with romance and disillusionment.

A bus, caught in a blizzard, leaves four weary travelers stranded at a cheerful diner. Among them, Cherie, an unlikely nightclub singer, is pursued by a headstrong cowboy who's ready to sling her across his shoulders and carry her kicking and screaming back to his ranch.

As a counterpoint, the bus driver and the cafe's feisty owner finally find time to develop a relationship of their own and the cafe's naive young waitress encounters her first taste of romance as she is courted with a Shakespearean flourish by an inebricated scholar.

Bus Stop runs at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and at 7 p.m. Sundays through Oct. 28. The Cabaret Theatre is on the corner of Fourth Street and Fourth Avenue behind the Beiter Dental Clinic at Fort Ord. Admission is $3. Tickets: 242-6337.

The Norman Conquests

The Norman Conquests, a trio of comedies by Alan Ayckbourn, continues this week at California Repertory Theatre. Each show pictures present-day Brits striving to keep up a show of manners — while they battle for each other's affections.

Though each of the shows is complete in itself, they are constructed as a trilogy that can be seen in any order.

Round and Round the Garden plays at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 13. Table Manners continues at 8 p.m. Friday and Wednesday, Oct. 12 and 17. It will have a 2 p.m. matinee Wednesday. Living Together will play at 8 p.m. Thursday, Sunday and Tuesday, Oct. 11, 14 and 16, with a 2 p.m. matinee Saturday, Oct. 13.

Seats are $9 to $13. Students and senior citizens receive a 50-percent discount with proper I.D. one-half hour before curtain time. Group rates are also available.

California Repertory Theatre is at 125 Ocean View Blvd., off Cannery Row in the American Tin Cannery Building, Pacific Grove. Tickets: 372-4373.

Shepard comedy opens

BROTHERS AUSTIN (Conrad Selvig, left), and Lee (Larry Welch) are surprised in the midst of their feuding by the arrival of their mother (Doris Silver), during the Monterey Peninsula

College production of True West. The play will have its central coast premiere at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 11 in the MPC Theatre. True West continues through Oct. 27.

Bedroom Farce

A housewarming party sets the stage for a zany romp across the beds of London in Bedroom Farce by Alan Ayckbourn. This humorous peek into three bedrooms and four marriages continues at the Studio Theatre-Restaurant in Carmel.

Carmel native Peter Magee, director of this British comedy, has assembled a cast of peninsula theater veterans and new faces. Floss Larsen, Sammie Pratt, Connie Erickson, Larry Ayo, Robert Basgall and newcomers Jane Tyler, Bob Daley and Jim Holbrook are featured.

Bedroom Farce will play Thursday through Sunday nights until Nov. 24. Dinner is served at 7 p.m. and curtain is at 8:30. Sunday times are one hour earlier. Admission is $22.50 for dinner and show. A limited number of show-only tickets are available Thursday, Friday and Sunday only for $10. The theater is on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel. Tickets: 624-1661.

Benefit wine auction planned

THE THIRD annual tasting and auction of premium wines from California wineries to benefit the scholarship fund of Santa Catalina School is scheduled Saturday, Oct. 13.

Representatives from approximately 20 wineries will be present to conduct tasting of their vintage varietals and will donate wines for the auction. Donations from private cellars will also be included.

The gala will begin with a wine tasting from 4:30 to 7 p.m. The auction will run from 7 to 9 p.m.

David Armanasco, general manager of Durney Vineyard in Carmel Valley, will preside as master of ceremonies and auctioneer.

Cost for the wine tasting and auction is $12.50 per person and is tax-deductable. The event will take place in Saint Louis Bertrand Hall at Santa Catalina School on Mark Thomas Drive in Monterey.

Pointer Sisters, Tubes, Medflys play Laguna Seca

THE SECOND Sun, Sound 'n Seca event of 1984 boasts a diverse lineup as the Pointer Sisters, The Tubes, The Medflys and Full Moon Tan play the natural amphitheater tucked in the oak-dotted hills half-way between Salinas and Monterey.

Gates open at 9 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 14, and more than music is scheduled that day. The round of activities includes a Michael Jackson look-alike contest, a recreational vehicle show, wind-surfing and hang-gliding demonstrations.

June, Ruth and Anita Pointer are the daughters of the Rev. Elton and Sarah Elizabeth Pointer of Oakland.

Their parents' goal was to protect the Pointer children from "the bad lives people in the blues and jazz led." The sisters graduated from this relatively isolated musical world, sang as backup for artists like Dave Mason and Elvin Bishop at the Fillmore West and cut two formula R-and-B singles for Atlantic.

They disbanded in 1977, to regroup and record such international hits as He's So Shy, So Excited, Slowhand, Jump, Fire and Automatic.

Presenting colorful theatrical antics as part of their show, The Tubes are also scheduled to perform Sunday. The seven-member band cracked both the Billboard Top 20 singles and album charts with Outside Inside.

The Medflys will bring their fast-paced style of music that encompasses everything from rock to ska. The group has self-produced two rock videos, Belfast and Compulsive.

Bay Area band Full Moon Tan rounds out the music menu at Sun, Sound 'n Seca. The progressive quintet has recorded the reggae-flavored No Money, No Chick, No Car. Their other tunes include Do You Believe in Aliens? and You're Full of Excuses.

Concert tickets are $12.50 in advance or $15 the day of the show. Tickets are available through BASS, Ticketron, San Jose Box Office, Santa Cruz Civic Center and Sherwood Hall Box Office in Salinas. For more information, call 372-4961.

OAKLAND'S own Pointer Sisters, June, Ruth and Anita (left to right), will headline the Sun, Sound 'n Seca concert Sunday, Oct.

14, at Laguna Seca Recreation Area. Their hits include Jump, Automatic, Slowhand and So Excited.

Serious partiers, comedy fans congregate at 'tent'

Santa Clara "Blotto" tent, wore a copy of a Sons of the Desert fez from the movie of that name.

The comedians' appeal crosses age barriers. According to Cassara: "My father introduced me to Laurel and Hardy. When I was a little boy they made me laugh, and dad really enjoyed them too."

Cassara's father joined him at the meeting, as belly laughs punctuated screenings of The Midnight Patrol and Fra Diavolo.

"Over the years they kind of disappeared from TV," the Grand Shiek noted. "Only recently they've had a revival on videotape. I'm kind of disturbed the only ones shown on TV are post-Hal Roach features. They had no control over them after that. Stan was the brains of the outfit — he used to have a hand in directing and would watch the rushes."

NOT ONLY are Stan and Ollie appreciated, but several of their supporting players receive cheers during screenings by The Midnight Patrol. These favorites include James Finlayson, Charlie Hall and Edgar Kennedy — "master of the slow burn."

Midnight Patrol member Tom Compton heads an "Edgar Kennedy Research Committee," which consists of himself. Compton is trying to track down the actor's exact birthplace. It is rumored to be somewhere near Monterey.

The Midnight Patrol is a non-profit group, and dues have been collected to help pay for film rental and refreshments. If the group gathers enough members, it will emulate other Sons of the Desert tents and rent halls for its functions.

Dues are $25 for individuals and $40 for families. Upon joining, members receive a Sons of the Desert fez, a paperback copy of Mr. Laurel and Mr. Hardy by John McCabe and Stan Laurel, a subscription to the Inter-tent Journal, the Midnight Patrol newsletter and a "Well, here's another fine mess" button.

The Midnight Patrol will next meet at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 18, at Cassara's home in Monterey. Again, refreshments and a screening of Laurel and Hardy classics will be the order of the meeting. Those interested in attending as guests should call Grand Shiek Bill Cassara at 372-6085 between 5 and 7 p.m. Santa Cruz-area residents can call Frank Goulette, 426-1310.

The address for more information about Midnight Patrol is Box 222512, Carmel, 93922-2512.

MONTEREY ROCKERS The Medflys bring a new wave sound to the Sun, Sound 'n Seca concert on Sunday, Oct. 14. Tickets are $12.50 in advance or $15 the day of the concert. Hanggliding demonstrations and a Michael Jackson look-alike contest round out the day.

'Dance for Heart' visits Monterey

The American Heart Association invites all men, women and children to "Dance For Heart," at Monterey Conference Center, 1 Portola Plaza in Monterey.

"Millions of Americans have discovered that aerobic exercise is an enjoyable way to get into shape," said Dance-for-Heart Chairman Patricia Griffin.

"The exercise routines that we go through at the events involve jumping, stretching, kicking — a lot of different movements. They are all done to lively music and are relatively simple for most people to follow. I don't want anyone to think that they have to be an expert dancer to enter this event. Any aerobic exerciser can come out and have a fun day. We especially would like to have more men sign up this year," said Ms. Griffin.

Registration forms are available from the American Heart Association at 10 San Miguel, Salinas, and from many dance exercise instructors. The entry fee is $10. Entrants receive a form that they turn in the day of the event with pledges from sponsors, which are based on the length of time the exercisers work out.

The top fund-raiser wins a weekend for two at Cedar Lodge in Yosemite National Park. Other prizes include head and wrist band sets, sweatshirts, warmup suits, exercise shoes and soft luggage. Participants can also win one of the many door prizes.

Aerobic leaders at the Monterey event are Nicole Duffel of Body Focus, Salinas Athletic Club, and New Image Figure Salon.

LARKIN HOUSE SET PATTERN

The Larkin House on the corner of Calle Principal and Jefferson, Monterey, built in the 1830s, set the pattern for what became known as "Monterey" architecture, a blend of Thomas Oliver Larkin's New England building designs and native California construction.

MOODS of Ireland, including County Kerry, are reflected in the Explorama release, Ireland Rediscovered. The travel film will be narrated in person by its producer, Willis Butler. The film will be shown Thursday and Friday at Sunset Theater in Carmel. It is the first show of the Explorama season.

Film producer to narrate in person

'Ireland Rediscovered' via Explorama travel movie

IRELAND REDISCOVERED will initiate a new season of Explorama travel and documentary films at Sunset Theater in Carmel.

Willis Butler, producer of Ireland Rediscovered, will appear in person to narrate this visit to the Emerald Isle. The film, made this year, will be shown at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 11, and at both 2 and 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 12. Sunset Theater is on San Carlos at Ninth in Carmel.

Ireland Rediscovered visits Dublin, Belfast, Shannon, Killarney, Galway and the Aran Islands. Featured sequences include the Royal Dublin Horse Show, Waterford crystal factory, the Ring of Kerry and the Blarney Stone.

Willis Butler is a graduate of Northwestern University's School of Speech and has many years of broadcasting experience. His career includes a series of television films of Africa for NBC and photographic missions to Europe, the Middle East and Asia.

In addition to being a filmmaker, Butler is a noted speaker and reporter who possesses an ability to penetrate beneath the surface of his subjects. He has been granted private audiences with a number of world figures, including the late Eamon deValera, President of Ireland.

Other films in Explorama's 1984-85 season, which runs through May, include Hong Kong and Macau, Americans in Paris, Norway, Glories of the Alps, The Orient Express and Yugoslavia: An Adriatic Adventure.

Tickets are available through The Mailbox in Carmel or at the door. For a season subscription, contact Explorama at (415) 771-4733.

Color etching master to visit local gallery

MASTER ETCHER Josef Eidenberger of Vienna, Austria, will attend a reception that marks the last stop on his American tour.

More than 200 of his works will be displayed at the reception, scheduled from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 13 at the John Miller Galleries, San Carlos between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel.

Now 86, Eidenberger was born in Goisern, Austria, and began his artistic career as a landscape painter with great perception for the mood of the local countryside. In 1923, he enrolled in the Graphic Academy of Art in Vienna and studied under Alfred Cossman.

His eye for detail and the meticulous execution of each plate has brought him many commissions from city officials and members of the business communities of Europe, especially Austria and Germany.

In 1973, after visiting the United States for the first time, he created a series of California etchings which added a dimension beyond his scenes of Europe. In 1974 he was commissioned to do a series of color etchings of Williamsburg, Va. in commemoration of the bicentennial celebration. During the same year, he added etchings of other scenes throughout the United States.

The artist resides in his native Austria and is still active in creating new plates and continuing to expand the variety and selection of his work.

He has become adept in the field of multi-plate color etchings, and in 1977 the Austrian government awarded him the honorary title of Professor of the Arts in appreciation of his contribution to the advancement of fine arts. In 1981 he received the Gold Medal Award as Europe's best etcher.

Further honor arrived this week as a delegation, headed by U.S. Secretary of the Interior William Clark, hand-carried an Eidenberger etching to Madrid, Spain.

Presented to the Fray Junipero Serra Museum by the people of the United States, the multi-plate engraving is of the Carmel Mission Basilica. The John Miller Galleries supplied the print, presented during a Thursday, Oct. 11 ceremony.

John Miller Galleries is open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. For more information, call 625-1213.

SAN FRANCISCO, Waterfront, a multi-plate color engraving by Austrian artist Josef Eidenberger, is among the works available at John Miller Galleries. The artist will be present at a reception from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 13. The gallery is on San Carlos between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel.

Westerman watercolor exhibit opens

Arn Westerman's prize-winning watercolor scenes are currently on display at the Galerie De Tours, at two locations: on Lincoln Street at Seventh Avenue in Carmel and at Pebble Beach Mall, on 17-Mile Drive, opposite The Lodge at Pebble Beach.

Westerman has won three national watercolor competitions in the last two years, and has been awarded a top prize by the National Watercolor Society in its annual nationwide open competitive show.

Galerie De Tours is Carmel's oldest privately-owned art gallery and is also the second oldest in San Francisco. There are other branches in Beverly Hills and Pebble Beach.

The exhibition is a display of important contemporary and historic art. Westerman's genre material is in the tradition of such names as Eastman Johnson, Winslow Homer, and George Luks — whose works have been on display at the Galerie De Tours.

Under the direction of gallery owner Robert J. Kaller — widely known as an art critic, appraiser and art judge — the Galerie De Tours has become noted for its investment quality 19th Century American and European paintings as well as for its renowned contemporary works.

Currently hanging in addition to the main showing are original paintings by Norman Rockwell, Andrew Wyeth, George Inness and Childe Hassam, among others.

Such groups as "The Eight" (The Ashcan School) and "The Ten," who revolutionized the thrust of American painting in the late 19th and early 20th Century, are regularly featured at Galerie De Tours. Present examples include Willard Metcalf ("The Ten") and Ernest Lawson ("The Eight").

Historic Western art is showcased at the galleries. Currently available is a pair of original works by Frederic Remington — watercolors of typical American infantrymen and cavalrymen of the old West. Taos School members whose works are on the walls at Galerie De Tours include E.I. Couse, Warren Rollins and Leon Gaspard.

A museum-quality study of a 1909 Indian Chief by Maynard Dixon constitutes an eye-stopping display in its own right, and a series of primitives by Sandy Wickersham Resnick form a notable example of early Americana.

The gallery has not neglected the early California artists such as William Keith, Norton Bush and J. Francis Murphy.

Popular priced florals by Dorothy Spangler are shown in a variety of sizes and colors, to add a light and cheerful tone to a room.

A variety of sculpture is also on display, ranging from the contemporary works of Robert Russin and Charles Taylor to Remington, Russell, and the famed Karl Kauba.

A remarkable study by Rubens completes a visual feast difficult to match anywhere in the country for both quality and variety. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. every day.

LIKE IT, one of the featured works in the current exhibition of watercolors by Arn Westerman, can be viewed at the Galerie De Tours on Lincoln and Seventh in Carmel. The show opens Friday, Oct. 12 and will continue through the first week in November.

Gateway Gallery opens Dalva Duarte exhibit

PAINTINGS BY Dalva Duarte will be featured at the Gateway Gallery, Dolores near Sixth in Carmel. An artist's reception is scheduled from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 13 at the gallery. The exhibit will run through March 1.

The artist is Brazilian and for the last 16 years has resided in Paris. During an interview conducted in France, Ms. Duarte said: "I have an insatiable urge to paint constantly, relentlessly and enthusiastically. I am immersed in my work, which I need as I need breathing. Painting is my only total commitment. I cease to exist without it.

"My work has progressed from typical charged Brazilian Carnival. I am now experiencing more profound sensations, my paintings are more expressive, I am attracted to people — all peoples. Living in Paris is somehow a stimulant to me despite the very cosmopolitan flavor of this city, very aggressive and sometimes sad."

The exhibition at Gateway Gallery embraces watercolors and oils. For more information, call 625-6300.

Guest conductor Zack is latest symphony candidate

Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 3, the Scotch. George Zack currently serves as music director and conductor of the Lexington (Kentucky) Philharmonic and the Warren (Ohio) Chamber Orchestra, which perform subscription concerts, operas, ballet, pops concerts, musical theater and a young people's series.

Born in the United States of Greek parents, George Zack began his musical studies at an early age on the piano and trumpet, later adding viola and violin. He holds degrees from Wichita University (B.M.), the University of Michigan (M.M.) and Florida State University (Ph.D.). He has studied conducting with James P. Robertson, Gustav Meier and Richard Lert.

Zack has been described as one of that exceptional breed of conductors who combines tremendous talent with a consuming zeal for bringing the world of great music to an ever-increasing audience. "The music must speak to me," Zack said. "Only then can I sell it to the audience. My responsibility is to present not just what everybody will like the first time, but to educate and expand their listening horizons."

Thirty-three-year-old Janina Fialkowska makes her debut this season with the Monterey County Symphony. She is fast becoming the standard by which other youthful pianists are measured, having established herself internationally as one of the major talents of her generation.

Since she won the 1974 Arthur Rubenstein International Piano Competition in Israel, she has appeared with the major orchestras of the United States, Europe and her native Canada. Following the competition she became the protegee of Maestro Rubinstein.

the time she was 17. She continued her studies in Paris for one year and then went to Juilliard to study with Sascha Gorodnitzki. Ms. Gorodnitzki calls her "a genuine superstar."

Critics have praised Janina Fialkowska's playing. The Chicago Tribune said: "She is a poet of sensitive intelligence and remarkable maturity, a virtuoso of speed and articulation." One of her highly acclaimed recordings from RCA Records prompted the critic from Gramophone Magazine to remark that "she is a pianist in several thousand."

Zack's appearance, part of the audition procedure in the Monterey County Symphony search for a new music director, is sponsored by the local branches of Bank of America through the Bank of America Foundation and by the Salinas office of Deloitte, Haskins and Sells. Miss Fialkowska's appearance is made possible by the Guest Artist Endowment Fund, which is supported by members of the community who wish to ensure the future appearance of internationally acclaimed artists with the orchestra.

Tickets for the Sunday concert at King Hall may be purchased at Abinante Music Store in Monterey and the Symphony office, Room 7 at Sunset Center, Carmel. Tickets for the Monday concert at Sunset Theater may be purchased at Do Re Mi in The Barnyard and at the Symphony office. Salinas residents may purchase tickets at Gadsby's Music Company, Old Town Salinas, and at the Salinas Community Center office. The box office at the halls will be open at 7 p.m. the nights of the concert. For more information, call 624-8511.

All concerts begin at 8 p.m. Single ticket prices for the Carmel concert are $9, $10 and $11. Monterey concert tickets are $9 for adults, $5 for enlisted military and $4 for students. Season tickets will be sold up to the time of the first concert.

MISS FIALKOWSKA began her piano studies with her mother at age five and earned both her bachelor and master's of music degrees from the University of Montreal by

45th butterfly parade set

COSTUMED children will take to the streets Saturday, Oct. 13, as the 45th annual butterfly parade and bazaar unfolds in Pacific Grove.

The parade will begin at 10:30 a.m. and wind through downtown Pacific Grove. At 11:30 a.m., the bazaar will open at the Middle School athletic field, 835 Forest Ave., Pacific Grove. The bazaar will feature a flea market, cake booths and a country store with homemade jams, pickles, aprons and other goods.

Enlivening the bazaar will be assorted entertainment booths, plus face painting, a pumpkin patch and visit from Pocket Lady.

The parade commemorates the return of the monarch butterflies to this sleepy hamlet, from their wintering grounds at Asilomar. Orange and black like a jack o' lantern, the monarch deserves its title as "the king — indeed monarch of the butterflies."

Butterflies start out as fleshy green and black caterpillars but pass through a larval stage in which they are transformed into brightly winged insects of tremendous beauty.

OCEAN VIEW OPEN HOUSES 2-5 p.m. Sunday

If you want an ocean view where you look over the balcony and drop a line into the sea, Carmel is not the place for you as only a very few such houses exist in Pebble Beach and the South Coast that so qualify. If you would enjoy a lovely view of the sea from your master bedroom and balcony outside, we have TWO HOUSES that qualify. And they will be open for your inspection this Sunday.

1. LINCOLN STREET north of 2nd in Carmel.
CASA CONTENTA is the name and Carmel luxury is the game. A brand new home constructed on an extra-large lot, this lovely home features a beautiful living room with plenty of light, large deck, open-beam ceiling, fireplace, tile from Mexico on the floors and an ambience not found in Carmel or just about anywhere these days in the sales market now offered.
The dining room with its fireplace opening has its balcony and plenty of space for family living. The kitchen features all the appliances the homeowner could want PLUS access to a sunny western-facing deck.

Up a couple of steps you find a large bedroom with adjacent laundry room and separate bath with Jacuzzi-tub. The master bedroom provides a lovely western deck and a view of the bay from the balcony or even the bed. The bathroom must be seen to be believed — twin basins, old-fashioned chain-pull commode (but it's really new), "footed" tub, and the unbelievable
TOWER OF SHOWER.

The yard facing the street is fully landscaped and gorgeous to behold and an off-street parking structure is included. We've only mentioned some of the amenities so drop by and see for yourself. $495,000.

2 MARCHETA at BIRDROCK in Pebble Beach. This two-story home features the same ocean view (well, a different segment of the sea, of course) from the balcony and two upstairs bedrooms. A bath concludes the second story while downstairs are featured another bedroom, a second bath, a living room with fireplace, dining room with separate fireplace, and a large kitchen with breakfast area.

The corner lot provides space for a large garage, enclosed patio, and a very sunny and open atmosphere not enshrouded in a forest of trees. All this is located across the street from the golfcourse and just feet to a wide-open view of the sea in the Birdrock area. Asking $299,000.

AT THE CHERRY FOUNDATION

BY JANE WILGRESS

Poetry and music

A POETRY reading, "The World into Words," will be presented by poets Kent Chadwick and Denis McGilvray at 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 14.

This will be a premiere of original work by these writers. The event will be in Cherry Hall, Guadalupe at Fourth, Carmel, and the public is welcome. The price of admission is simply "something in the donation basket."

Kent Chadwick, who participated in a reading at Cherry Foundation last year, recently has taught English at Monterey Peninsula College. He has had work published in Sojourners magazine. He and his wife soon will move to Japan to teach English and to study Japanese.

Denis McGilvray is a young poet, a student and part-time tutor at Monterey Peninsula College. After a stint as an abalone farmer, he is now also youth ministry assistant at Carmel Mission. Besides being a devotee of poetry, Denis is an avid photographer and painter.

At 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 19, in Cherry Hall, the foundation will present a duo, Maureen and Ciel, in an evening of traditional music on the harp and hammered dulcimer. Harpist Maureen Brennan studied her instrument at the San Francisco Conservatory. Ciel Tarmann, a high school teacher in San Jose, has studied piano and won hammered dulcimer competitions in California and Michigan.

The duo has performed extensively up and down California. One reviewer said: "They play everything from haunting slow airs to lively jigs and reels. Prepare to be enchanted by these gentle yet powerful musicians."

Donation for this event will be $5, and $4 for seniors and students. For reservations, call 624-7491.

The general meeting will be preceded by a seminar on landscaping with native plants, presented by Alice Mehdy, president of the Monterey Peninsula Chapter of the California Native Plant Society.

The plant seminar begins at 11 a.m. and admission is $3. The luncheon is from noon to 12:45 p.m. and admission is $4. It is not necessary to attend the luncheon to hear the program on pros and cons.
